Brief Sketch of Boone County

By legislative enactment of Virginia, the county of Fincastle was dissolved Dec. 31, 1776. One part of it became on that date Kentucky County, Virginia, with bounds and limits as follows: "All that part thereof which lies to the south and westward of a line beginning on the Ohio river at the mouth of Great Sandy Creek and running up the same and the main or northeastern branch thereof to the great Laurel Ridge or Cumberland Mountains; thence south westerly along the said mountains to the line of North Carolina." It will be observed that the north and western limits are indefinitely nameable landmarks.

In May 1790 Kentucky county was subdivided into what were called Kentucky County so there this name dropped out of history for awhile. These were named Jefferson, Fayette and Lincoln. Boone County was formed eighteen years later in 1808 from Campbell County that in turn was formed from Harrison, Scott and Mason Counties that were formed from Woodford County in 1784. Woodford County was formed from Fayette in 1788.

Boone County, the thirteenth in order, was organized in 1798, and Burlington, the county seat, was incorporated in 1824, it being then quite as large if not larger than the city of Cincinnati. The first authentic history relative to the north-south line of Boone County was in 1793 when a Frenchman, named Languet, discovered Big Bone Lick, where wild animals congregated to lick the morass sediment of the great springs that figured so prominently in Kentucky's history as being one of the chief supply points for salt, by both the red men and the pioneers.

The first white woman to visit Kentucky (and Boone County) was Mrs. Mary Ingles, who with Mrs. Draper and her two little boys were captured by the Shawnee Indians in old Virginia, and were carried to the Salt Wells (Big Bone Lick). From here, Mrs. Ingles, she escaped, and by living on grapes, berries and bark she managed to get back to her old home having to traverse a trackless forest, not even daring to follow a trail for fear of again falling into the hands of the savages. One of the little boys died in captivity, the other after thirteen years' life with the Indians was ransomed by his father.

The first survey to be made in the county was the Big Bone Creek. This was made July 5, 1778, by Captain Thomas Bullitt. It was then also the discovery was made of the wonderfully well preserved bones of the mammoth and the mastodon, the place being located back in the middle and pleistocene ages a lick, for these huge and extinct animals at this locality, the largest mastodon bones and tusks yet to be found, were unearthed, and now reside in the British Museum, London, England. One of the first permanent settlements made in the county was at Petersburg, called then Tanner's Station, named in honor of Rev. John Tanner, the first Baptist preacher to set foot on the soil of Boone County to begin its history. In May, 1790, John Tanner, a boy of nine was made prisoner by the Indians, and in 1797 Edward, a brother of both Rev. John Tanner, was captured and escaped two days later, but through the Indians he learned news of his brother, whom it was afterward learned spent his life with the Indians, and in 1818 became an emissary of the Government as an interpreter.

Daniel Boone, after whom the county was named, was among the first white men to establish permanent citizenship in this section. His keen knowledge of the Indians, his unfeeling nature and craftiness were self-installed arguments of his supremacy. The Big Bone Lick (salt Springs) was in documents not to be overlooked by the frontiersman, for from the water salt could be distilled, a commodity that in those weird days was listed with life's luxuries on the border.

The large game that had been undisturbed for ages, save by Indian hunters, also knew the beneficence of these springs as a lick, and to the intrepid Daniel Boone was as ideal place to kill such as he most desired.

Pass from the picture of the vast forest, teeming with life of every kind, the few log cabins at trading stations, Daniel Boone, playing a game of hide and seek with the Indians' wild chance of losing his scalp, to the tranquil scene of today, with the wonderful

uts. The fine grade of white burley tobacco grown here is also prized sought for at fancy price on the markets.

Our Schools

The schools of Boone County are fully up to the standard of any common school district in the State. The buildings are in very good repair and every facility is employed quite different from the old and ramshackle log school houses with wide fireplaces and slab seats, such as our forefathers had. Great credit is given to the selection of competent educators, that the best possible result is obtained.

Churches

The churches of the county show the predominating and towering strength of the Christian faith of novelist, John Uri Lloyd, The "Warwick of the Knobs" was inspired by the rich landscape view in the southern part of the county, and the silvery brooks and creeks that sing sweet notes in their rippling to the lover of nature. Big Bone Spring, with its old-style hotel and waters known far and wide through their great curative power, is a place of great interest to the traveler.

A few miles from Burlington along the cliffs, again one comes in contact with ornate creation of diversified scenery. Here, too, is found sparkling springs, with waters pure and remarkably cold. The most admired of these springs is the great "Split Rock," set out seemingly without support, and from which gushes fresh cold water clear as crystal.

Reminiscences Of Petersburg

By Edward Young Chapin
The Recorder has asked me for some reminiscences of the Boone County I knew in the late seventies and the early eighties. It was a land of boundless plenty; of stalwart men—reaping the harvest from fat acres of charming women, creating homes redolent of domestic joy.

The villagers looked at this a little enviously. We ground the grain and set it to fermenting; and gathered a vapor from it that Bishop Cannon would not praise; but that had its attraction for the outer world. We and we carried on the modest commerce that exchanged the products of the farm for the output of the loom, the factory and the foundry.

This latter occupation was carried on in stores where trade never pressed; where there was abundant leisure for the exchange of gossip along with the exchange of commodities; where, issues, local or native, found time for debate. These stores were the gathering places of our philosophers; and of audiences that hung upon their words.

I had been appetites for new. A favored few were read the Quaker after the "Water Witch" had brought it down on her first trip from Lawrenceburg. There were other papers published in Cincinnati in those days—the Commercial and the Gazette, and these were "radical" sheets, and found no readers in Petersburg, barring, perhaps, a "government officer" who that they were foreigners and did not count. We wouldn't have believed the news in the State or commercial even if we had read it.

The privileged readers of the Enquirer would transmit the printed news to their own favored neighbors by word of mouth, beginning with those congregated on the river bank who were there permitted. It filtered through the town until early candle-lighting; and then it was taken up at the stores, mixed with the gossip items collected around town and out in the country, for final discussion and determination. The reputations, local and national, were made and told. So public sentiment crystallized and became manifest.

The two churches were our principal gathering places. Each had its preaching once—sometimes twice—a month; with services conducted without a minister between. But if there was a secular gathering in the meantime, it was held at a church. Itinerant lecturers were heard there. I remember one with picturesque looks and fervid rhetoric, who spoke on the battle of Gettysburg one night; and once on the subject of the never able to speak after that, although he remained in town a day or two longer, and was our local son of Belial got him drunk and kept him so.

Don't imagine from this that we were a "wet" community or that drunkenness was not frowned upon. Petersburg was among our own local steamboats that ran to Lawrenceburg and Aurora; there were no telephones and no radio then, but we were alert to what was going on; and we reacted to it as sensitively as you could react today. We had our concerts and our amateur theatricals. I remember when "The Lady of Lyons" was given at the Methodist Church, and a stage was supported by whiskey barrels—and we had our singing schools, when a teacher from the outside world would en-

Foreword

A great historian once very truthfully said that "history, in its strictest sense, is principally a matter of biography." It is largely upon this principal that this publication has been compiled. That this edition is incomplete is a self-evident and frankly admitted truth, simply because there are not enough biographies.

Referring to the statement of the historian, and in substantiating his theory, it is our claim that if all of the biographies of Boone county's men and women from the time of her organization until the present, were comprehensively chronicled one would have the most complete history possible to produce. The theory upon which this assertion is based is the incontrovertible fact that the men and their deeds make history.

The foundation of all civilization everyone must admit is the church. In Boone there are many, some more pretentious than others if it is true, but nevertheless, all occupy and deserve their proper place in her history. This edition contains all of the church data that we could obtain. The invitation was openly extended thru our weekly publication for many weeks and what the reader finds here is presented with the statement that these not represented were omitted thru no fault of the publisher.

Admitting, as we do, that we consider this publication somewhat incomplete, yet we unhesitatingly contend that it contains information of vastness and value to both the present and the future generations. Sometime in the future, possibly not so distant, we expect to publish another edition similar to this one, thus supplementing our present effort with a second volume.

Relative to a general historical sketch of Boone County it would indeed be difficult to produce one more comprehensive, and, at the same time as concise, as the one printed in the special edition published by the Recorder on August 19, 1903, just twenty-seven years ago. Due to the fact that there are a very, very few copies of that edition now in existence we are reproducing that sketch in other columns of this publication.

It will be interesting to the reader, after digesting the paragraphs captioned: Farms, Hotels, Schools, Churches, Courts, Fruit Growing, and Commercial Life, to note the vast changes that have transpired during the quarter of a century that has elapsed since that day in August, 1903. While it may seem a long period to many, yet it is comparatively a short time after all, those twenty seven years, and the changes that have taken place since then are so marvelous that they would have paralyzed the most vivid imagination of that age.

Farming, in its numerous diversified phases, is Boone county's life blood and it is of her farm and her farmers that her citizenship in its entirety is predominantly proud. When the supplemental volume of this edition is published the keynote of the publication will be Agriculture and Industry. In that volume we hope to exploit her principal resource, her farm lands, which are unexcelled for scenic beauty and for all practical purposes.

stride of progress as contrast. Indeed, it is a far cry and hard to comprehend. Yet to be appreciated.

Boone County today can pride herself as being one of the most foremost in the State where religious zeal, industry and education work hand in hand to make happy homes and a contented people.

The farmers, with exception of few, are in excellent financial shape the per cent of indebtedness being quite small, and it is doubtful if there is another county in the State that can show as few mortgages recorded. This with the fact that Boone is one of the largest counties in the State speaks volumes for the prudence, sagacity and high standing of our husbandry.

The fine blue grass pastures make stock raising of this section one of the chief revenues.

Cereal raising and tobacco raising are the chief agricultural products. Nearly every community is represented with commanding church edifices, each presided over by able and influential pastors, who work in harmony to advance the teaching of Christianity.

Towns

The county is represented with several towns of commercial strength. Burlington is the principal seat, with some 500 population; Florence, Walton, Petersburg, Rabbit Hash, Union, Hebron, Beaver Lick, Verona, Hamilton, Normansville and Bellevue. Erlanger is the principal railroad station of the County, but closely in this place identified with Boone County, we enumerate her with our list.

Scenery

The picturesque scenery of Boone County is beautiful to the extreme. The pleasing story of the noted

Our Courts

Big courts in Boone County seem a thing of the past. The legal business is light inasmuch as litigation is concerned. Like all county seats a jail is in evidence, but as six months has elapsed since a prisoner has entered its doors, so little is this place of county property that weeds have grown up high around the main entrance. The county officials, without exception, are gentlemen of the highest standing.

Fruit Growing

In the past few years particular attention has been given to fruit culture, and the reward has been an excellent return for the investment. Many orchards are being set this year, and the outlook does not seem distant until Boone County can in this line of commerce claim distinction.

liven the winter, cloaking, in a blaze of glory, with a concert in the Spring.

Our farmer friends—these were aristocracy—produced blooded stock as well as grain. They were formidable contenders at the Fall fairs in northern Kentucky and southern Indiana. These were among the notable occasions of the year. My heart quickens now as I think of the old one. John Moody taking a fifteen minutes recess from his duties as ringmaster at the Aurora fair to appear in the gentlemen's riding contest with a stern rigidity of deportment that overshadowed competition.

It was a wonderful life, lived in an environment where rugged hills and a gracefully curving river inspired delight that was enhanced by a soil so generous in its yield that our fields and gardens had to smile in spite of themselves; and the people who lived it were worthy of their inheritance. Can you wonder that it will always yearn to go back to it?

Thomas Rouse

By Emma Rouse Lloyd

Thomas Rouse, the son of Boone County pioneers, John and Nancy Zimmerman Rouse, who came to Boone County in 1805, was born on a farm near the present site of Hopeful Lutheran Church, August 20, 1816. Mr. Rouse was an outstanding figure in the early civic affairs during the forties and fifties of the last century.

He attended a country school and when a half grown boy went to live near Florence with Joshua Zimmerman, an uncle, his mother's brother. When he was in a general store in Florence, owned by Dr. Menzies.

In 1837 when he reached his majority, he was elected to the duty Sheriff of Boone County.

In 1846-47, he was a member of the Kentucky House of Representatives.

In 1850-51, he was in the Kentucky Senate from Boone County.

He married Nancy Ann Henderson in 1856.

"Buffalo Hill," the home of Thomas Rouse, was named from the buffalo trail across the farm where the buffalo, after crossing the Ohio River from Indiana and Ohio, went to Big Bone for salt.

In early times a trapper built his cabin close by the trail on his farm in order that meat might come to his door. As a herd of buffalo was passing he shot and wounded a cow. A bull charged and killed him.

Buffalo Hill was located three miles west of Union in Boone County on the Big Bone Lick and Riddell's Run roads. The farm contained one hundred and thirty-three acres. It was bought from L. L. Youell and wife, Frances, for $4012.00, by deed dated May 31, 1853. Thomas Rouse sold this place to Hubert T. Buckner, October 1st, 1863.

In the year 1841, Thomas Rouse rode horseback from Kentucky to Missouri, thence to the Kansas territory, looking for Albert Stephens, the son of John Rouse of Boone County, Kentucky. He found that Stephens had been driven off by squatters from the north to Iowa. In this search he came to a river where there was a military camp on the opposite shore and a scow ferry. He was met by an officer who asked his business. He replied that he was lost and was endeavoring to reach Missouri. This outpost was Fort Leavenworth. There were no settlers. The soldiers were here to quell the Indian war about sixty miles to the west.

Mr. Rouse crossed the Mississippi River in a skiff ferry, the horse swimming behind the boat. Then he went about ten miles into Missouri and stopped for the night at the home of a settler. Next morning his horse was gone. Following his tracks back to the river, every trace of him was lost. Another horse was located and Mr. Rouse continued on his journey. About two or three months later the lost horse arrived alone at his home in Kentucky.

About 1845, Thomas Rouse, with a spirit of adventure as well as to search for a better location, ran Kentucky for a home, made a horseback journey to the location that is now Chicago.

He first reached old Fort Dearborn arriving there in the early evening, but finding no opportunity for lodging for the night. He went to the six miles further on or thereabout, along the lake shore, there was a tavern where he could get accommodations. It was raining, everything was wet, but this was the best he could do. Accordingly he rode along the lake shore until he reached the location. The way-side tavern alluded to proved to be situated in a very swampy prairie, the only way of reaching it being by means of a plank walk, the boards being laid singly, end to end. Reaching the frame building he knocked at the door which was opened by the land lord, to whom he applied for accommodations for the night. The reply was: "You can take the horse to the shed and feed it yourself. I can give you a blanket and you can sleep on the floor in the hall above." In addition he was served food, coarse supper. This tavern was situated where now stands the city of Chicago.

In the morning, Mr. Rouse turned his horse's head toward Kentucky. On his arrival he stated he would not give his Boone County farm or the whole prairie with the lake thrown in. Land where Chicago now stands could have been bought at that time for a dollar an acre.

Thomas Rouse was a delegate from Boone County to the Presidential Convention which met in Baltimore in 1844 when James K. Polk was nominated. With a party of friends he made the trip on horseback.

When Thomas Rouse was a young man he engaged during the winter months in running a flat boat from Cincinnati to Vicksburg or sometimes New Orleans. He would purchase the boat in Cincinnati and load it with the staple products of that city, flour, prepared tobacco, hams and bacon slabs (the entire side of the hog). Whiskey was also an important item, there being a large demand for it among the southern planters.

However, Mr. Rouse did not depend upon Cincinnati for all his stock of provisions. His home being in the Big Bone section of Kentucky, he was familiar with the northern part of the state where tobacco, whiskey and wheat were the principal products, so these commodities were not all purchased in Cincinnati. After reaching whatever he wished to buy in the city he floated the boat to the mouth of Big Bone Creek where the load was completed with tobacco packed in casks, bacon, whiskey from the adjacent distilleries and flour from Norton's old stone mill at the mouth of Big Bone. This was quite an active locality in those days. Mr. Norman, being the principal factor, gave his name to the town, which location still bears the name Normanville.

During one of his trips to Vicksburg, he contracted cholera which was then raging in this country. He was given up to die and in a letter written to his home it was stated that he was dead. This was printed as a fact in the Burlington Advertiser, January 20, 1849, as follows:

"It becomes our painful duty this week to announce the death, by cholera, at Vicksburg, Miss., of two more of our estimable citizens, Thomas Rouse and Orlando H. Youell. Both cut off in the bloom of youth and from lives of promising usefulness—leaving many dear friends to mourn their untimely loss, sadly reminds us "That in the midst of life we are in death." We know both these young men well—and we can truly say, as can every other person who has ever known them, that we never knew them guilty of an improper action. Thos. Rouse has held several offices of public trust in the county, which he discharged well and faithfully. Winter before last, he was a member of the Legislature, where he acquitted himself so as to merit the approbation of all parties. Of Orlando Youell we can truly say, he was most admired where best known; and his relations and friends will feel his death an irreparable loss."

At the very time the print appeared, Mr. Rouse rode up to his home, quite unconscious of he read his own death notice.

With the opening up of the South by the railroads and the changing of the crops to include more food stuffs, the freeing of slaves, the old-time methods disappeared—wiped out by what is known as the march of civilization.

One morning during the Civil War when the family of Thomas Rouse awoke, the room was full of Union soldiers, asleep on the floor, a big fire having been built for them in the fireplace. Mr. Rouse was a strong Southern sympathizer, but he could not turn away this sad company of young men, the sons of his neighbors and friends, who came to his door in the middle of the night and asked for shelter from the zero weather.

His family consisted of five children who survived him: Emma (Mrs. John Uri Lill), Henderson (Mrs. John T. Shelby, Jr.) and Annie (Mrs. Charles R. Bird).

In 1866 he moved to Grant County where he lived until his death, April, 1906.

L. H. Voshell

L. H. Voshell has been a resident of Union for forty-one years happy in the blessing of hundreds of friends and though at an age (87 next August) when most men are forced to sit behind the fire with their memories, he is still hale and hearty going about where he pleases. He has not been ill enough to go to bed in over six years giving as his peculiar reason "a clear conscience and plenty to eat." Who knows but what that is good a reason to live. He has been temperate in all things though a mild user of tobacco.

L. H. Voshell has been a resident of Union for forty-one years happy in the blessing of hundreds of friends and though at an age (87 next August) when most men are forced to sit behind the fire with their memories, he is still hale and hearty going about where he pleases. He has not been ill enough to go to bed in over six years giving as his peculiar reason "a clear conscience and plenty to eat." Who knows but what that is good a reason to live. He has been temperate in all things though a mild user of tobacco.

Mr. Voshell's father, Mathias Voshell, came from Delaware in 1805. His method of transportation was by flat boat on the Ohio river which was probably one reason why he picked out Harrison, Ohio as his first stopping place, building the first log cabin at that spot. In 1827 he married a Woodstock country girl, Mrs. Mary Petersburg. The subject of this sketch was born of this marriage in 1845 on his father's farm located on the old Burlington-Petersburg dirt road.

He grew up in this neighborhood, attending the local schools and assisting with the innumerable chores always in evidence on pioneer farms. His higher education was taken at Moores Hill College in Indiana and as a result of which he taught school in the winters for over thirty years, and occasionally a spring term, operating his farm during the summer months.

In 1877 he was united in marriage with Miss Liberty Stanfield, one of the most popular girls from the Union community. She died in 1921 when Mr. Voshell has lived with a niece of his wife, Mrs. B. L. Norman, who with her husband has been a happy home.

Shortly after Mr. Voshell's marriage to Benjamin Willis and wife, whose maiden name was Garnett, came from Virginia to Boone County late in the 18th century and located on a tract of land, which took in practically all of the territory lying between what is now Petersburg and Bellevue or Grant. He was of Scotch-Irish descent. William Willis and his wife lived together 72 years of married life and he often stated that he had "never whipped her."

To them in their Kentucky home was born on March 13, 1792 their only son, Benjamin G., who married Anna P. Grant on March 2, 1814 and they resided on the same tract of land until his death in 1827. A few years after his death married Professor John Elliott, who during the Civil War was President of a college in Mississippi.

To Benjamin Willis and wife were born four sons and one daughter, the youngest son James B. was born November 11, 1828, and married Virginia B. Arnold, daughter of James Arnold of Covington, Ky. July 29th, 1845, to whom were born two daughters and three sons.

James B.'s eldest son, Thomas G. Willis was born on March 21st, 1847, on a farm near Ballinburg, church, now owned by Milton Gamble. He married Eunice Dills, daughter of Lewis Dills, of Ballinburg Green Hills on June 21st, 1876. They resided the most of their wedded life on a farm near what has been Gainesville, later Uninger, and is now Idlewild. This was the home of the possessions of their children. To them six children were born, three of which are now living.

One of the children, Edgar DeWitt Jones, D. of Detroit, Mich.; Eunice B. D. of Boone County and Charles G. Willis, who resided on the old Willis homestead.

Tom Willis was one of Boone

County's most popular citizens. He served the county as assessor two terms. He loved people, was a prodigious reader, and a most entertaining fellow.

When the National Red Cross considered putting on a Nursing Service in Boone Co., the local Red Cross personnel hesitated over the outcome of its acceptance, until the National Representative mentioned the fact that they hoped to obtain Eunice B. Willis for the position, whereupon Mrs. Mabel T. Sayre, one of the county's most loyal supporters, exclaimed, "well, if you can secure the daughter of Tom Willis it will be success."

At the time she started this work a great many people in Boone County were unaware of the opportunity presenting itself for work of this kind. During these five years, however, Mrs. Willis has consolidated the county in regard to the Red Cross and the many activities of public health.

Miss Willis has attained real prominence in her profession, and is looked upon with a great admiration by the public health workers. She is doing the same good work in adjoining states. At every convention of public health nurses in all sections of the county that Miss Willis has attended she is invariably called upon to describe her experience of work done in Boone County. Her love for this work is known by every young woman who lives in Boone County, and to the less fortunate members of these communities who are a veritable shining star. Below is a brief account of just one of her many good deeds that appeared in a leading medical journal.

The life of a Red Cross nurse has its drawbacks and tribulations. However, Miss Willis, the Boone County nurse, is ever ready to answer the call of need from the less fortunate members of the community. On a November day, Thanksgiving time, the Methodist bazaar and the county high school play as an added attraction to look forward to. Miss Willis was called from all this measure to the home of an unfortunate woman in the Verona section.

Miss Willis could go but partway in her car and was then forced to drive several miles in a wagon to drive the cold and aching child arrived at the rule log cabin house. The woman she was to visit. There was little of Thanksgiving for Miss Willis that year, but she was certainly thankful for a ministering angel like our county Red Cross nurse, Miss Eunice Belle Willis.

William Willis and wife, whose maiden name was Garnett, came from Virginia to Boone County late in the 18th century and located on a tract of land, which took in practically all of the territory lying between what is now Petersburg and Bellevue or Grant. To Benjamin Willis and wife were born four sons and one daughter, the youngest son James B. was born November 11, 1828, and married Virginia B. Arnold, daughter of James Arnold of Covington, Ky. July 29th, 1845, to whom were born two daughters and three sons.

James B.'s eldest son, Thomas G. Willis was born on March 21st, 1847, on a farm near Ballinburg, church, now owned by Milton Gamble. He married Eunice Dills, daughter of Lewis Dills, of Ballinburg Green Hills on June 21st, 1876. Prof. John Uri Lloyd CINCINNATI, O.

It is difficult, indeed, well nigh impossible for this writer to express the deep admiration he feels for the privilege of the all too few meetings with John Uri Lloyd. His magnetic personality and his unconcealedness long after departure from his pleasant office, conveniently located in the well-loved laboratories on an upper floor in the building housing Lloyd Brothers Pharmacists Inc. of which he is president.

Voluntarily could be written around the life of Mr. Lloyd, beginning with his boyhood days in Boone County, Kentucky, continuing thru the achievements of his mature years that are known throughout the country. Lack of space in this edition will not permit us to relate the details of the fullness of these later years. Other prints give the record of what he has accomplished in his chosen profession of research in plant chemistry.

John Uri Lloyd was born at West Bloomfield, N. Y., on the nineteenth of April, 1849, the eldest son of Nelson Marvin and Sophia Webster Lloyd. At the age of five his parents came to Kentucky, locating first at Burlington where the town was making a survey for a railroad to be lined from Cincinnati to Louisville. For some reason not now known, the railroad failed to materialize and the family moved to Petersburg, then to Florence, returning to Petersburg but finally settling down in Florence where Mr. Lloyd spent the most of his boyhood days and later made the town famous with his book on folklore, "Stringtown on the Pike."

This moving about was occasioned by the fact that his parents taught school in these places, changing as better opportunities offered. The father taught the older pupils, the mother the younger. Both the parents of Mr. Lloyd were well educated and had been teachers. A note in New York State before coming to Kentucky.

John Uri Lloyd's first teacher was his mother. Fortunately she was most capable, for as a child his health was not the best, being free from catarrhs which he has no doubt, have prevented his regular attendance at the short term public schools then available.

For a short time though he did attend a school at Petersburg, taught by a man named Holton, who was studying the sciences in the Christian Church. This student of the Bible required each pupil to recite a verse from Proverbs every morning, which was according to Mr. Lloyd, the beginning of his (Mr. Lloyd's) interest in the Bible and the habit of reading from it which has continued to the present time. His third and last teacher was a German, who throughout his boyhood he received much private instruction from his parents.

Mr. Lloyd's aptitude for Chemistry was manifested early in life and encouraged by his parents. He can not recall even from the earliest years but one time that he determined to be anything except a chemist. That instance was when a small boy he had cherished a secret ambition to become a trapper in the far west doubtless inspired by tales of Dr. Deane, Simon Kenton and other hardy pioneers who had moved on when Kentucky became "overcrowded."

As he loved the country, especially the woods, taking great pleasure in roaming through them accompanied only by his dog Turk, a stray pup that he began to look upon to keep and which became his close companion. Turk apparently was anything but a house dog, being used to roam about the woods upon but he was devoted to the little master by whom he was greatly beloved. One of the saddest blows for a boy is the loss of his dog and this came about when John Uri had become an apprentice in pharmacy at Cincinnati. No doubt time was heavy for Turk after his master left him, or perhaps he started going in the company that let him stray for circumstantial evidence indicated that he was imprinted in sheep killing. To the older folks there was but one punishment for such mischief, as his skin was sealed but the boy himself put the bullet through his head, preferring to do it rather than risk another not killing him instantly.

In his younger days in Boone County, Mr. Lloyd spent many happy hours in hunting and fishing. He was quite an expert with a gun, using a rifle for hunting squirrels and a shot gun for partridge. The pool at the foot of the bluff back of old Gunpowder Creek Baptist Church was a favorite place for fishing during the time he lived in Florence. Many happy days the boy spent there with his fishing pole. He has recently purchased this spot of ground with the intention of beautifying the church surroundings.

While living in Petersburg, he became close companion to Billy a process so revolutionary and far-reaching that it necessarily takes its place among the important basic secrets of the nation. That is but one example of his ever busy life.

In 1863 when he went to Cincinnati, an attic room in a cheap boarding house on East Third Street was his residence during his first year. Later he went to live with Mr. Gordon's head prescriber, Mr. Riefmader. Every third Sunday he was allowed a day off for the purpose of visiting his home in Kentucky. He was permitted to leave the store on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock and usually walked the ten miles to his home at Florence. Very often he walked back again Monday morning in time for business, sometimes carrying a carpet bag full of clothes which were washed and mended at home.

In one of his autobiographical sketches, Mr. Lloyd says, "Most exacting was Mr. Gordon, and Mr. Riefmader was no less so. No spare pains in teaching me the rudiments of pharmacy but sometimes I felt that my duties such as scrubbing the floors and washing the windows were far from the drug business. My work was hard but I made no complaint, and at the end of my first six months was highly elated when my salary was raised to three dollars per week instead of the two and a half. I agreed upon it." This writer wonders what would have been the thoughts of the fourteen-or-so boy had he been able to look into the future and see the success and worldly acclaim that was to be his portion in the years to come.

During the next two years he studied the dispensary record of each of the four or five colleges given of this rigorous course was given a certificate of proficiency. He was employed at Eger's Pharmacy, apprenticed himself the second time to learn the German prescription business. The young apprentice attended lectures at the Ohio Medical College and afterwards took a course in Anatomy at the Miami Medical College.

In 1867, after completing his second apprenticeship, Lloyd searched in vain for an opening in the drug business, so he took a position as Toldman in a Kentucky railway survey under his father. The following year he again entered the employ of the Gordon Pharmacy as a prescription clerk where he and his brother, Nelson Ashley Lloyd, was just beginning his training.

It is interesting to note that at this time Mr. Lloyd was earning a salary of six dollars a week, gradually being raised to ten dollars per week which seemed to him a very lucrative return considering the fact that all this time he had been learning a professional business in which it was supposed to spend his life. He took no little pride in the fact that from the little time salary received six dollars per week he saved a goodly portion of the sum. Counting his four years' apprenticeship, he clerked for nearly fifteen years. In 1871 Professor Lloyd accepted the position of Chemist with H. M. Merrill & Co. in order to make a systematic study of the eclectic materia medica.

Professor Lloyd passed an examination before the Cincinnati Pharmacy Board, the first established in Ohio, and attended the annual meeting of the Ohio Pharmaceutical Association, called for the purpose of forming a State society. During all the years that have passed since that time he has never failed to renew his certificate and to today a licensed Ohio Pharmacist he is, and his brothers, Nelson Ashley and Curtis Gage, who likewise took the apprenticeship method of learning the pharmacy business. The thoroughness of training and the exacting methods of his preceptors were the foundation for the unique success of his present business.

In 1878, Dr. Lloyd was made a professor in the Eclectic Medical College of which he was president from 1896 to 1904. He also held a professorship in the Cincinnati College of Pharmacy from 1883 to 1887. He has been associate editor of the Pharmaceutical Review, Eclectic Medical Journal and Eclectic Medical Gleaner. His scientific works are widely known. He has his books on folk-lore and legends of northern Kentucky, "Etidiorph," "Stringtown on the Pike," "Red Head," "The Right Side of the Car," "Warwick of the Knobs," etc., are all worthy of a place on the shelves of "peasant, priest or king."

He was a founder and is president of the Lloyd Library and Museum, a past president of the American Pharmaceutical Association. He is a member of the American Chemical Society, the National Eclectic Medical Association, Ohio Pharmaceutical Association, Authors Club, New York; Franklin Institute and Franklin Institute, Philadelphia; Society of Colonial Wars, Royal Society of Arts (England), Societe Academique d'Histoire, Internationale, Paris, and the Cincinnati Academy of Medicine (honorary). Four times he was awarded medals by the American Pharmaceutical Association, also receiving the Kemington Honor medal in 1920 for research work in colloidal chemistry.

Even though honored thus because of his accomplishments there is nothing dearer to John Uri Lloyd than the county and people of Boone. He and Mrs. Lloyd have spent much time in teaching the driving through the different communities, feeling it to be "home ground," regardless of the fact that they are unrecognized by most of the people they meet. The older res but will continue, as in the past, to consider Mr. Lloyd a best friend to Boone County, shown by his willingness to do much, without seeking applause for his hundreds of kind and philanthropic deeds.

Judge N. E. Riddell

BURLINGTON, KY.

This writer is able to give a very clear history of the ancestry of Judge N. E. Riddell of Burlington due to the fact that a most concise and accurate history of his family and all its branches, published in book form in 1884. In a preface, the author of this book relates in detail the lineage of the early ancestors in England and Scotland showing that by two or more alliances with the royal family of England, the blood of those forefathers was fused with every monarch that had sat upon the throne since King John. Naturally, members of this family rose to distinction and of course many of them saw service in all branches of the army and navy. The first of the Riddell ancestors were among the Normans who came to England with William the Conqueror, their name being spelled originally Ridel, and those early forefathers were of French descent. These Norman ancestors established families in various lands as early as the twelfth century.

According to the book, from which this information was obtained, the first authentic and complete record of the immediate ancestors of Judge Riddell was found that James Riddell was born in Scotland, coming to Virginia at an early date settling in Orange County where he became a wealthy planter and slave owner. The wife's name was Mary (there is no record of her maiden name) and she came from Scotland with her husband. The names of children of this ancestor, also, are generally known and only one of his descendants could tell his name and that of his wife. His birth must have been as early as 1700 or 1705. James Riddell died on his farm in Orange County at an advanced age.

The next in this line is William Riddell, a son of James who was born in Orange County, Virginia, the event taking place about 1725. This man mentions only seven children in his will, a complete copy of that will appearing in the book this writer uses as reference. A peculiar part of the will is that he divided his vast estates into three parts, giving each of his first three sons an equal share, leaving very little to the other children with the exception of a negro slave to the youngest.

William Riddell, the great grandfather of Judge Riddell came in for one third of this estate. The great grandfather of Judge Riddell also named William after his father, and this William was born in Orange County, Virginia, on July 16, 1764. He was married to Joicy Neal, a lady of Irish descent who was born in the year of 1776. This couple had thirteen children. There is a coincidence here as Mrs. Joicy Neal Riddell was born the year the Declaration of Independence was signed and had just as many children as there were original colonies in the United States. Ancestor of Judge Riddell was the first to settle in Boone County, coming here about 1800 and establishing himself as a man of wealth and prominence. He died September 7, 1816 and his widow May 23, 1836.

John Riddell, the eighth son of William, was the grandfather of Judge Riddell. He was born in Boone County, Ky., on February 11, 1804. He married Florencia McKay October 29, 1820. They had ten children. John Riddell spent practically his entire life in Boone County. He died January 11, 1868, and his widow died January 19, 1873.

Fountain Riddell, the third son of John and the father of Judge Riddell, was born in Boone County, Ky., January 9, 1833. He was married to Louisa, daughter of Nathaniel E. and Mary Bradford Hawes of Virginia March 10, 1870. Fountain Riddell was an attorney at law in Burlington for many years. He was educated at the Morgan Academy, taught school about one year and then commenced

Boone County Womans Club

The Boone County Women's Club was organized in 1926 with eight members. The interest has increased and there are now twenty-five enrolled. Our club boasts of some very unusual musical talent, and such work and instruction. We have dramatic readers, writers and some amateur poets. We are planning to have an amateur number our Public Health Nurse.

The club creates a feeling of good will and fellowship and is also instructive. We have had by death one of our best loved members, Mrs. Laura Botts. Those now enrolled are:

Mrs. Eliza Vossell, Mrs. Genie Green, Mrs. Susie Walton, Mrs. Lulu Willis, Mrs. Pearl Botts, Mrs. Lulu Hudson, Mrs. Ava Lea Walton, Mrs. Missouri Ryle, Mrs. Beatrice Huey, Mrs. Ida Easton, Mrs. Catherine Easton, Mrs. Lillian Goodrich, Mrs. Stella Berkshire, Mrs. Kathryn Maurer, Mrs. Joie Maurer, Mrs. Annie Cason, Mrs. Loulah Walton, Mrs. Pearl Hughes, Mrs. Clara Seebree, Mrs. Neva Seebree, Mrs. Lulu Huey, Mrs. Marshall Hoarin, Mrs. Joie Cason, Mrs. Mitchell and daughter.

ed to study law. He was the representative to the State Legislature in the session of 1861 and 1862, a time that tried many souls—and never was a candidate for political office. He was a Democrat in politics. Fountain Riddell had four children: John and Mary, who died in infancy, and Nathaniel E. the subject of this biography, and Hester, who was the wife of A. B. Benckner of Burlington.

Nathaniel E. Riddell was born in Burlington on July 7, 1861, spending his boyhood in this community and attending the Morgan Academy for his elementary education. He attended the Cincinnati Law School, now part of the University of Cincinnati, from which he graduated with the L. L. D. degree. Upon graduation he became associated with Judge John M. Leasing with whom he practiced law for several years.

In 1902 he was elected County Attorney in a hot race against D. E. Castleman. He held this office until 1920 when the death of Judge Cason he was appointed County Judge to fill his unexpired term. He was elected without opposition in the next election and has held that office since that time.

At the close of his present term as County Judge he completes twenty-eight years in public office. During this time Judge Riddell has made countless friends and hardly a day passes but what one or more persons have been benefited in matters ranging from personal affairs to that of county business. He has been a life insurance man, giving up this office to form of insurance except life insurance.

He was president of the Boone County Deposit Bank for about fifteen years as was his father before him, giving up this office about three years ago when this bank was merged with the Peoples Bank. On Monday, June 2, 1930 Judge Riddell was again elected president by the directors of the Peoples Deposit Bank, a position of unexpired term caused by the death of C. H. Youell.

For about two years Judge Riddell owned and operated the Boone County Recorder, first selling a half interest and then the balance to the present publisher, R. E. Berkshire. He is a secretary of Masonic Lodge No. 264 at Burlington for twenty-eight years. He is also a member of the K. of P.

Judge Riddell has few hobbies, probably getting his greatest recreation from driving an automobile and obtaining first-hand information as to how it runs. On June 6, 1900 Judge Riddell was united in marriage with Katie Huey, daughter of William and Virginia Garrett, whose father was descended on both sides from a free old Kentucky family. Mrs. Riddell is a life-long member of the Baptist Church. They have no children.

When Judge Riddell entered his present office as County Attorney he was the president of a Free Press in this county. At the present time there is not a lot of news in Boone County. A few miles of pike constructed and turned over to the state, thirty miles of which are now in this county has two hundred fifty miles

Citizens Deposit Bank

GRANT, KY.

While there are older banks in the community with larger capital stock there is none greater in proportion than the Citizens Deposit Bank at Bellevue, located on the west of the Ohio river towns in Boone County, the Post Office being called Bellevue.

The Citizens Deposit Bank was organized to fill the need for an institution of that kind in town as the nearest existing connection were either across the river, or at Petersburg or Burlington. With the funds in those days so hard to travel at certain seasons it was felt that, and the later successes of the bank have justified that feeling, a deposit bank could and should be established for the good of the whole community.

The new bank opened for business on the fifth of April 1909 with headquarters in a frame building which, though hardly a thing of beauty, was adequate for all purposes and eliminated the necessity of spending any of the capital stock at the start for a banking house. The initial stock was sold to the amount of $15,000 and remains the same today though more could be laid later about the increase in business.

The first president was James Rogers with R. O. Ryle Vice President, the latter being still on the board of directors. The first cashier was Forrest Brown with the following directors: J. J. West, W. H. Arnold, R. B. Brown, M. J. Corbin, James Sullivan and Al Rogers.

The deposits on opening day totaled $2,706.25 which has since increased to over $200,000 on deposit this morning. The bank's huge increase has been effected since the advent into office of the present management. In 1911 the deposits totaled about $30,000 only.

At the present time the Citizens Deposit Bank has a surplus of $15,000 which equals the amount of capital stock and in addition a total of $11,000 as undivided profits. The bank is certainly a most healthy condition for any bank anywhere, especially when it is understood that for a number of years past the bank has paid a six percent semi annual dividend to the stockholders.

Seldom is found a youngster more desirous of learning a business than the boys who work upon the staff of the Citizens Deposit Bank. It is just that Mr. McNeely did during the year of 1912, when he was associated with the Citizens Deposit Bank to learn the rudiments of the modern banking business.

In 1913 he was elected Cashier of the Citizens Deposit Bank, taking charge on the second day of January. His honesty of character has been a big factor in the success of that institution. The deposits persons have increased since he took hold. He has been constantly in this executive capacity except one year when he was absent as clerk of a general store at Jackson's Landing where he went at the age of 21 to strike out for himself.

During the World War he was instrumental in overruling the bank's quota in both Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps to the total of over $75,000.00. He is the possessor of a citation from the Federal Reserve Bank for this wonderful work in behalf of our Government.

His hobbies are fishing, croquet and checkers, and he is a proficient in both. He is a member of the Baptist Church for twenty years and has been a member of the A. L. O. U. Chapter No. 13, Grant, Ky. He has been Noble Grand two or three times and secretary of the lodge for several years. Mr. McNeely has lived all his life in Boone County except the five years in Gallatin and no greater bond of love for his community, county and state could be found than the object of this short sketch which so inadequately describes his history.

of country road which is passable at all times of the year.

While not alone in making these improvements it was through his foresight, energy and action by which they were obtained. Another much needed improvement during his term of office was the building of the new jail in 1928 and the installation of modern heating, plumbing and water supply in both the infirmary and court house. As probate judge, Mr. McNeely settled every case and acted as a large criminal jurisdiction by reason of his office. There is not a man in Boone County who does not know the people look with greater respect than Judge Riddell, and his confidence has never been betrayed.

Albert Conner

BURLINGTON, KY.

It falls to the lot of some individuals to have the magnetic personality necessary to make and keep hundreds of friends. In Burlington we find such a man in the person of Lewis Albert Conner who has spent practically his whole life in this county where he was born and reared.

His parents, Owen Perry, born March 11, 1810, and Adm. Alice Carpenter Conner, born May 10, 1821, resided on a farm on the East Bend Rd. four miles from Burlington and that was where Albert Conner was born May 10, 1878. He was the only son and youngest child of this couple, the other children being, Annie, Eva and Corey who are all living. His parents are both dead, the father having died Sept. 18, 1905, and the mother, March 5, 1921.

In his younger days Albert attended the Locust Grove private school and took up farming which occupied him until he was thirty years of age, when he moved to Burlington. This was in 1908 and he was engaged for sixteen years in the loose leaf tobacco business as a dealer, earning in contact with hundreds of farmers each one of whom are quick and willing to verify the honesty of all his dealings. During the year of 1907 he handled tobacco for the Post organization, then active.

From 1914 to 1921 he was stockholder, director and active in the work of the warehouse at Walton. Mr. Conner was elected a member of the school board and directed the present high school building at Burlington. An interesting sidelight in connection with the school building (continued on next page) this short history comes the personnel of the present officers and directors. The stockholders choose the directors and they in turn elect the officers. It is the duty of the directors to permit the history of these individuals, however many will be found elsewhere in this issue, but the affairs and condition of the bank is ample as well as positive proof that no better men could have been selected to serve.

The president of the Citizens Deposit Bank is W. B. Rogers, a son of the first president and he has held this office since 1923. The vice president is Henry Clore, who has officiated since 1924 in this capacity. Besides these gentlemen the board consists of the following public spirited and successful residents: R. O. Ryle, John J.

stockholders, which it still continues to do.

During the year of 1927 it was decided to build a new home for the bank, which was done, and when completed revealed any building of its kind in the community. The building alone is valued at $65,000.00, the previous building as well as a great asset to the town. To protect and secure the books and monies of the bank, one of the latest Victor secret door and proof safes was installed which has a double arrangement for locking. One of the regular combination and the other a time lock that can be set to suit the convenience of those in charge.

The cashier is C. E. McNeely who has held that position with honor and business integrity for sixteen years except during an illness when his place was taken by Mr. A. Rogers, and has the respect and confidence with all whom he comes in contact. The assistant cashier is John S. Clore, a World War veteran and resident of this county who has been Mr. McNeely's right hand man since 1924.

Grover C. Ransom

The history of G. C. Ransom of Verona is that of a young man who left his own county to seek work elsewhere, who rose high in his profession at that place and through force of circumstances returned home and took up an honorable place among his neighbors in his home community.

Mr. Ransom is a descendant from an old Kentucky family that moved from Virginia in the early part of the new century following the close of the Revolutionary War. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Ransom, are both dead. He was born Sept. 14, 1864 on his father's farm near Verona and here he received his local school training. When still a young man Mr. Ransom went to Chattanooga, Tennessee, entered the postal service

JOHN L. JONES

The search light of public opinion is focused upon the life of John L. Jones and reveals a self-made man of the highest character who as a poor orphan boy came back to Kentucky, the home of his forefathers, and through sheer grit and determination forged his way to the top, earning the love, respect and confidence of all with whom he has come in contact. He is a descendant, on both sides, of old pioneer Kentucky stock which is perhaps one reason for his achievements that came to him only with the hardest endeavor.

For years Mr. Jones was an extensive operator of hundreds of acres of Boone County land, rearing just one year ago in a beautiful and cozy new bungalow located in the town of Florence. The immediate supervisor of the home place, "River View Farm" is left in the capable hands of his young son, John L. Jr., though the greatest pleasure of Mr. Jones is the time spent in looking over that beautiful spot where he lived so many happy years.

To give a brief description of the Kentucky ancestors of Mr. Jones, the writer takes you back nearly to the birth of independence in this country for it was about that time when the great grand-

Union Baptist Church, a branch of the Big Bone Church, was organized in 1886 with thirty-five members. Mr. and Mrs. James A. Huey and Mrs. Annie Bristow being the remaining members of that number. Pastor Lafayette Johnson served acceptably for several years as the first pastor, followed by Dr. Sam Adams. During the life of the church many splendid men have been called to the pastorate, among whom were Dr. J. P. Stewart, who was a missionary to Rome, Dr. Bradley Jones, Jones, Md.; Dr. J. H. Garber, of Hampton, Va. and Rev. J. S. Wilson. Under the leadership of Godly men many have been added to the membership. Rev. Victor Stephenson, a man of deep consecration, is now occupying the parsonage and serving as pastor of the church.

What now Adair County, Missouri, was then stopping point and these hardy frontiersmen were the original builders of that territory. The maternal great grandfather of Mr. Jones, Johnny Kane, left Kentucky with Daniel Boone and Geo. Kane, the son of this ancestor, was the first white child born in Adair County. Mr. Jesse Jones, the paternal grandfather emigrated to Missouri shortly after rearing a family and whose descendants still remain with the exception of the subject of this biography.

DR. L. C. COWEN

Though away from Boone County nearly thirty years Dr. Lewis C. Cowen will always retain the happy memories of his younger days spent in the midst of hundreds of friends in this section.

Dr. Cowen was born in Burlington on November 12, 1848, the son of Samuel and Marie A. Cowen of that place. On the 18th day of October, 1877, he was united in marriage with Jennie Hastings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hastings, East Bend, Ky. Mrs. Cowen passed away in December, 1928, and the couple were childless.

Dr. Cowen received his elementary education in the available public schools in Burlington, receiving his advanced education at Ohio Medical College from which he graduated with the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1875. His medical education was added to by post-graduate courses taken at various times in Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. He practiced his profession in Boone County for 27 years, moving to Rising Sun, where he now resides, twenty-nine years ago.

Besides membership in numerous medical associations and societies, Dr. Cowen is a Mason, a K. of P. and an Odd Fellow. His motto is to do right because it is right to do right. Probably many have heard this motto before, but the ones who live up to it are in the minority. Throughout his entire life-time Dr. Cowen has been interested in the advancement of Boone County and was ever willing to contribute and cooperate toward this upbuilding.

attending the local short term schools which were at that time the only source of education available.

At the age of ten years his mother died and he was his own burdened expression, "I wasn't raised; just grew up." Not long after this his father also passed away leaving the boy an orphan and practically a pauper. The father had been one of those big-hearted men unable to say "no" to any of his friends who sometimes persuaded him to endorse their notes which his estate was forced to pay, wiping out completely his farm of 100 acres.

Any boy had often heard his Uncle relate the tale of the thirty-day trip in a covered wagon from Kentucky which, inflated upon John L. with the desire to return to the country of his forefathers. He did it at the age of twenty and was soon hard at work on a farm near Big Bone at the pitifully small wage of $12.00 per month. This was his start in Kentucky but the spark of ambition that had been within his breast would not permit low wages to retard his achievement for not long after he was operating his own farm and today is one of the biggest land owners in Boone County. Daniel Boone when Kentucky was united in marriage with Sofie C.

The first members of the Conner family came to Kentucky some years prior to the Revolutionary War. One member of this pioneer family continuing on to Missouri Daniel Boone where Kentucky began to be "crowded."

Mr. Conner is a member of the Baptist Church, he is a Mason, a K. of P. and a Modern Woodmen attending the Burlington chapters of these lodges. He is interested in all kinds of sports, fishing, hunting and baseball.

J. G. Renaker

Ask nearly any man in Boone County who J. G. Renaker is and one will quickly be told he is cashier of the Florence Deposit Bank. No fewer people will know that he is also in the real estate and insurance business which started as more or less of a side line but has since grown to large proportions.

Mr. Renaker was born in Harrison County July 24, 1880, a descendant of an old and prominent family of that country. His grandfather, Noah Renaker, was the founder of the Kentucky branch of the family, coming here from Virginia. His father was G. T. Renaker and his mother the former Sallie Penn, both natives of Harrison County, who reared eight children, the subject of this article being the eldest.

Until he became of age Mr. Renaker stayed with his parents on their farm in Harrison county then spent four years on a farm of his own, in the meantime having made use of every educational facility possible, that would prepare him for a future, broader in scope and opportunities, that he was not in grasping. He became cashier of the Florence bank in 1909 after a valuable connection with the Southern Ohio Electric Company.

The growth of the bank has been extraordinary under his leadership and he can be noted in another article in this edition. The public with whom he deals has implicit faith and confidence in his integrity and character.

Mr. Renaker was awarded a medal of honor from the government for his intensive work in promoting bond sales during the war and he has been a leader in all other campaigns for patriotic purposes. He is a member of the State Bank Association, loyal to his church, a Past Noble and member of the I. O. O. F. and a member of the Pythias.

He resides with his wife at Florence, in a beautiful home across from the fairgrounds. His wife, the former Jennie Cahill, whom he married on September 8, 1910, is a native of Florence, Ky. Mr. Renaker derives his greatest pleasure from automobile driving and was one of the first in the county to own one.

Reib, a native of this county, who has been his inspiration through these many years. They have six children, all married, three boys and three girls. Harry F. who is in the dairy business at Cincinnati; Jesse C. a millman farmer and a member of the Methodist Church and hauled the first load of stone, forty years ago, in the erecting of the church at that denomination at Big Bone and still is a member. He has been a director of the Boone County Insurance Company for twenty-three years and though never seeking political office he served on the Qualification Board of the Tax Commission for twelve or fourteen years.

Mr. Jones is a charitable man and has done much good that many know about and won't if he has his say, however, one cause can feel assured of his hearty cooperation and support if the cause is worthy and the improvement or good of the community the object.

and rose to the rank of Superintendent of the Money Order Department. He was local Secretary of the Civil Service Commission in Chattanooga. In 1909 he married a Tennessee girl by the name of Anna Leffler. This happy couple have three boys, one at the University of Kentucky, and the two others in school at Verona.

After twelve years spent in Tennessee, Mr. Ransom was called back to this county to settle his father's estate and remained here operating an extensive farm until 1921 when he entered the Verona Bank as Assistant Cashier.

Mr. Ransom is serving a second term as Magistrate of the Fiscal Court from the fifth district, having the honor of being elected the first time without his name on the ticket and has done his part during this time for the upbuilding of the whole county. He is also a member of the Verona School Board.

The subject of this sketch is an Episcopalian by training, but attends the Baptist church due to the fact that there is no church of his denomination at Verona. He is a member of the Masonic Lodge and is a past master of Verona Lodge No. 576. His greatest enjoyment for recreation is automobile driving, looking after an extensive farm located on the pike between Verona and Crittenden.

(Continued from preceding page) connection with this building was the fact that Mr. Conner drew the stakes for the location of the building, sticking in his belief that he had selected the best spot. The face of considerable opposition from the other members of the church, who believed he had chosen out the wrong spot. The opposition brought out the architect, looking the ground over from all angles agreed absolutely that Mr. Conner had picked the choice location. A team of Mr. Conner drew the plow that broke the first furrow in the excavation for the foundation of the high school.

Mr. Conner was deputy sheriff under B. B. Hume during the years of 1911 and 1912. During the next four years he acted in the same capacity under Sheriff W. D. Conner.

For the four years from 1917 to 1921 Mr. Conner held the office of high sheriff of Boone County, an office which he great honor and one that he filled to the satisfaction of everyone. Since retiring the retiring age Mr. Conner has been a loyal and staunch member of the Democratic party, never failing to support the ticket. His cool nature and level head enabled him to all with whom he came in contact. This trait was Harold attended the local schools graduating from the Burlington high school in 1916. At the age of 19 Harold was as deputy sheriff under his father and as such was probably the youngest in the state of Kentucky. Despite his immature years Harold captured one of the first stunts found in Boone County.

In 1926 Harold accepted a position as bookkeeper with the Dan-Gerow Co. of St. Petersburg, Fla., in position held for several years. At present he makes his home in Burlington, where he is engaged in the breeding and racing of greyhounds.

Harold was married to Louise Walton of Saylor Park, Cincinnati, they have no children. But he and his wife own considerable town property at this place. During the war Harold attended an officers' training school at Lexington and when the draft was called for the ages between eighteen to forty-five, Mr. Conner and his son went together to register.

Lewis Conner, paternal grandfather of Albert Conner, was born in 1822 and died Aug. 3, 1897. His paternal grandfather was the daughter of Henry Ayler, who was born in this county Nov. 8, 1853, and passed away July 2, 1910.

in evidence to all except wrongdoers, many of whom have good reason to realize that his motto while in office was that similar to the Northwest Mounted Police—"Not your man." In 1905 Mr. Conner sold his home at Burlington moving to Florida for the milder winter climate. The following summer was spent in Florence, and again the advent of cold weather found him among the palms and summer people of Florida. In the spring of 1927 he returned to Burlington where he is at present he is manager of the Burlington branch of the Boone County Farm Bureau, a position where his countless friendships stand him in good stead.

He was married on September 29, 1906 to Fannie Mae Latham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Latham of Florence, both of whom were natives of Boone County. Their marriage ceremony was performed by a great uncle of Mr. Conner, Uncle Ed Stevens, commonly known as "the marrying" parson. Uncle Ed also married the parents of Albert Conner.

Mr. and Mrs. Conner have one son living, Harold who was born on Nov. 2, 1923. Little Perry was born on March 1, 1930 and died with pleural pneumonia at the age of twelve on March 3, 1932.

Florence Deposit Bank

The Florence Deposit Bank, one of the most progressive institutions in Boone County, opened for business on the twenty-fifth of July in 1904 as the first bank in that town and after the need was apparent to all the influential people of that community. Throughout its existence, the stockholders have shown unusual judgment in the selection of the officers and directors who have guided the destinies and growth from a capital stock of $15,000 at the start to the present total of $35,000 which was inaugurated in 1926.

The first president of the Florence Bank was W. H. Rice who

St. Patrick's Church VERONA, KY.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

This parish was begun by a number of Irish immigrants. The first that came was Mr. Thomas O. Dwyer. He came to Cincinnati from Ireland, leaving a large family behind him. He came from Cincinnati to Verona to work on the farm of a certain Mr. Hudson. Dwyer and worked in the neighborhood and on Sundays the home of Mr. Dwyer was headquarters for a short while. Then others came with families or the young fellows married and began homes of their own till there was a number of Irish homes scattered over the neighborhood. There were families around Crittenton by the names of Murphy and Flynn. Father Willey, it seems, came to administer to them first, and went from house to house and had services, and by this time a number of families by the name of Dwyer, Ryan, Dempsey, Carr and others were living around Verona. Father Willey also came on these trips. These trips were ones for the priest because they were made on horseback mostly, and the trip was made from Covington.

In 1865 John Dempsey, who lived near where the church now stands gave a lot for a church. Rev. Father Watson, who succeeded Father Willey, built what is now St. Patrick's church at Verona. Since that time many other Catholics have moved in and many other families have come to care for the spiritual wants of the people. But, working conditions have changed many of the young men and women who they could do better. All the old folks have passed away and in spite of the fact that many big families among them there seems never to have been more in our church than were prepared for in 1865.

In the erection of the bank building every precaution was taken to make secure the place where the public's money was stored, with the necessary safes and vaults as first consideration.

Besides Mr. Rice and Mr. Scott the original officers of the bank were: C. W. Myers, Secy., with the following directors: E. O. Rouse, M. P. Barlow, J. S. Surface and B. H. Tanner, who with Mr. Myers are still on the board. The other members of the present board are C. F. Blankenbaker, J. B. Respass, L. C. Acra and Theodore Carpenter, with Mr. Blankenbaker president, J. S. Surface, vice president; E. O. Rouse, secretary, and J. G. Renaker, Cashier.

Mr. Blankenbaker has been president since 1919 and Mr. Renaker cashier since 1906. Perhaps the Florence bank would have prospered without these two gentlemen for it was a sound institution from the start, but there is no doubt, as figures will prove, that since their advent into office the growth has been steady and sure. Their high character and business integrity has instilled confidence in all their depositors and their earnings for the stockholders have been both pleasing and profitable.

The assistant cashiers of the bank are Mrs. Eva R. Miller who has been a valued employee since 1914 and Mrs. George Y. Tanner since August, 1926. Their friendly spirit and reliability of both these ladies has been appreciated by the customers as well as the bank.

Patrick E. Farrell VERONA, KY.

The history of Patrick E. Farrell, known as Ed by his friends, is that of a man without the advantages of wealth at the start, who worked hard during his life and has been given a high place in his community because of his honesty and integrity of character.

Though leading a simple life and most unassuming he wielded considerable influence for good, and when the bank of Verona was organized a high place in his community and still is. He, with the president of that institution are the only two remaining original members of the Board.

Mr. Farrell is of Irish descent, his father and mother both coming from southern Ireland at a youthful age about the year of 1855. His mother's family came straight to Boone County settling in Verona and the father's family stopping in Kenton County. After the marriage of his parents, the father settled down at Verona, remaining there until he died in 1880. His mother passed away in 1910. His maternal grandfather was Tom Dwyer.

P. E. Farrell was born on May 15, 1865 on the old Slade place about three miles from Verona. He labored in this field during his entire life-time. He attended the local schools in Verona and studied two terms at the school of Miss Nannie Hamilton.

After his schooling he lived on the farm with his mother until his marriage with Kate Long, a Verona girl, in February, 1892. This couple have no children of their own living. His wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. McDonald of Covington, who stayed with them until reaching the age of twenty-one, were the adoptive parents who loved the same as Failure in health caused Mr. Farrell in 1920 to sell his farm and on the advice of his physician he spent two years in Colorado. He has a beautiful home at the present in Verona, where he hopes to spend the remaining years of his life. He is a member of the Catholic Church and active in the up-building of the entire community and county.

He has never asked or sought public office, however, his influence is widely sought each election in behalf of some particular candidate. Mr. Farrell has done much and no doubt has been a contributing factor for that growth, and in the future one can only see as the years roll on, further increases in the prestige of such an institution.

Union Presbyterian UNION, KY.

UNION PRESBY. CHURCH

We can't recall the date but sometime during the eighteen seventies this building was purchased, having been previously used as a store room.

Through the efforts of Joel B. Frazier, M. C. Norman, with the help of the late Rev. E. W. Redinger, D. D. a Union Sunday School was organized, with M. C. Norman as superintendent. With a splendid corps of teachers and a famous choir this union Sunday school had a wonderful work.

Space forbids to tell of the many splendid young people who went to other fields of labor.

From this Union S. S. a good Sunday School was organized in the Baptist chapel.

Through the efforts of Joel B. Frazier, E. B. Norman and others this building was converted into a very comfortable place for worship. In 1879 W. T. Spears, D. D. was called to the pastorate of the Richmond Presbyterian Church (of which Union Church is a daughter). He began preaching at Union twice a month in the afternoon, realizing this was a promising field, and for five years, he labored in this field.

And this church owes to his efforts, its rise to its greatest efficiency.

In 1884 the session of Richmond church decided for the good of this work a church should be organized in Union. Just at this time the pastor was called to another field of labor and on the 10th of October, 1885, Rev. J. Walton Graybill was called to the Richmond church and perfected the organization at Union. The first members were: Elders: J. B. Frazier, M. C. Norman, Jacob Floyd and J. T. Frazier, Deacons: Robert Chambers, Jack Bell and Everett B. Norman.

Rev. J. W. Graybill organized the Ladies Aid Society in the summer of 1885 with the following officers: Miss Laura Norman, president; Mrs. Robert Chambers, vice president; Miss Nannie Bristow, secretary, and Miss May Norman, treasurer. This organization has in the past, and still is, doing a splendid work for the church and its interests.

Rev. A. S. Rachal, a very successful minister, now of Louisville, Va., was sent out from this church. This church has been served by seven pastors, viz:

Rev. J. Walton Graybill, Rev. D. D. Tadlock, D. D., Rev. J. M. Broadway, Rev. W. H. Davis, Rev. W. H. Davis, Rev. W. M. C. Miller, Rev. Scott T. Hill, Rev. Charles Carson, present pastor.

Under the ministry of these consecrated men this church has increased its fold 197 members.

Some have gone to their reward, some to other fields and has left the church weakened in numbers, but still holding the torch on high that others may catch the gleam.

The present officers are: Elders: J. T. Frazier, N. M. Rachal, R. L. Cleek, and N. H. Smith; Deacons: J. C. Bristow, C. H. Bristow and Carroll Dugan.

In June 1929 the church purchased a beautiful building site on High-st. looking forward at some time to the erection of a new church.

Verona Deposit Bank VERONA, KY.

With the high ideals of benefit and protection to the public as first consideration the Verona Bank was organized for business on July 6, 1903 with a capital stock of $15,000 that had been quickly subscribed by the many influential people in that section who were far sighted enough to realize the need for such an institution in their community. J. E. Franks was the first cashier and a prime mover in such an institution, influential people and who with the president was instrumental in getting business off to a mighty good opening.

The first president was W. M. Whitson, who still holds that of-ice after years of service to the community and of the upbuilding of the whole section. The other gentlemen as officers and directors who certainly justified the faith of the stockholders were: R. O. Powers, Vice President; O. A. Whitson, Secretary; Geo. W. Roberts, W. T. Blackburn, P. E. Farrell, J. G. Tonlin, M. B. Bledsoe and C. C. Roberts.

A substantial brick building was erected to house the new bank that was ready for occupancy at the start of business. The fixtures are of quarter sawed oak and the modern safe and deposit boxes with the burglar alarm make as secure as humanly possible the depositors money.

It seems hardly possible that a bank in a small town could ever achieve the growth and the growth shown by the figures of the Verona Bank. In 1903 at the start of business the total deposits were $13,500.00 and at the close of business on March 1st last the deposits had reached a staggering total of over $250,000 or over one quarter of a million dollars.

At the present time there is a surplus of $15,000 which equals the capital stock besides an undivided profit of $7,000.00. A fair rate of dividend has always been paid in addition. The officers and directors responsible for this growth deserve the watchword of the present cashier, O. A. Whitson, for one worthy of 1913, when he took over the position, totalled only $1500.00.

Of the original stockholders were fortunate in the selection of their officers and directors so less can be said of those serving at the present time. Everyone of them are men of sterling worth who have established themselves in the eyes of his neighbors as men worthy of the greatest trust and that trust has never been betrayed.

As was stated above the present head is W. M. Whitson as president with W. B. Ambrose, vice president; O. A. Whitson as the cashier and G. C. Ransom Assistant Cashier. The board of directors is as follows: G. C. Ransom, W. Roberts, J. E. Franks, B. McCormick, Wm. Willford.

Service to the community was the watchword of the bank and that slogan could easily be retained today for that is still the greatest consideration in guiding the destinies of the Verona Bank. Step by step, and sometimes ahead, the bank has stayed with the march of time and without doubt will continue to do so for many years to come.

Veterinary Medicine at Burlington from May 15, 1909, continuing until February 1, 1912. Soon after he moved to Newport, Ky., where his chances were somewhat better to increase his practice, staying there until 1913, when he was appointed Veterinarian to the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky, which position he held until Dec. 15, 1917. During five months of this latter period, from February to June inclusive, he was a United States inspector of foot and mouth disease. At the present time Dr.

and Trust Company; associated 1912 with H. S. Probasco in founding the American Trust and Banking Company of which he is president; also with R. C. Lundy in the Lundy Trust and Loan Company; vice president, Ryer-Hughes Company; vice president, Tennessee-Furnace Corporation; also of Richmond Spinning Company; secretary, Spring Springs Bleachery and United Hosiery Co., Memphis, Chattanooga Steam Laundry Company; Tennessee Stove Works member, Community Council of Chattanooga; Hamilton County Board of Education member of the boards of directors of Chattanooga Public Library; Chattanooga Tuberculosis Sanatorium; Central; Mason (K. T.); clubs, Mountain View and Golf and Country; author of numerous booklets describing fiduciary service of trust companies; home 24 Bluff View, Nashville, American Trust and Banking Company, Chattanooga, Tennessee.

This biographical sketch was not prepared in Boone County. If it had been it would have noted that the subject began his education under Miss Katie Davis, learned the blacksmith trade under Professor Billie Stott and worked for a time under the renowned Walker; and finally went over to the Lawrenceburg High School after the Petersburg instructors gave him up.

The tendency toward industry indicated by the sketch's title was indicated was not marked by the older residents of Petersburg; it also manifested being the piling and rapping of slaves and the raising of hoops at the Cooper Shop.

An early bent toward commerce was noted when he opened a store at Second and Tanner Streets in 1885; but his old Preceptor, W. T. Stott, located just across the street, gave him such hot competition that he sold out to a drug store of which he became the trusted compounder of prescriptions. From this he very naturally gravitated into the study of law in the office of John G. Carlisle in Covington.

While in Petersburg, he was a member of that coterie of which Ben Berkshire, John M. Botts, Frank Geisler and Harry Lyon are survivors. His "Who's Who" biography does not mention his membership in an order known as Titus Tuns to which they belonged; nor in the Cooper Shop Club under the presidency of Harry Kirkhoff; nor the Sons of Temperance, who used to meet over Snyder's Store and in which he rose to be Worthy Patriarch. It does not mention another office which he held—that of prosecuting attorney in the Kangaroo Court over which Judge George Berkshire presided.

With these emendations we submit the "Who's Who" sketch to those who may be interested as evidence of what Mr. Chapin has been doing since he left old Boone.

C. O. Hemphling TAYLORSFORD

Charles O. Hemphling is probably the most widely known and biggest producer of apples in this section of Kentucky, specializing in "Big Red" variety that he markets by the thousands of bushels through brokers handling fancy eating fruit. He owns two farms along the River bottom at Taylorsport buying the first one, Parlor Grove, in 1903 and should take no little pride in the fact of having brought it from an unprofitable proposition to its present high state of prosperity. This place has 84 acres and at one time was the pleasure ground for residents of Cincinnati coming there for picnics by the boat load. Local opinion in Boone County brought it into use as farm land.

After building up this farm Mr. Hemphling purchased Webb Hall, a beautiful estate of 272 acres that had been in the Webb family over one hundred years. This farm is given over to general crop, stock, hogs and gradually working into the production of Big Red apples and already thousands of bushels of peaches are grown each year.

Webb Hall is one of the oldest, time and would not be feasible today, however, such workmanship is of lasting quality.

Mr. Hemphling's name is a certain index of the nationality of his forefathers and being of such sturdy German stock is perhaps one reason why he has been able to surmount many obstacles in his successful climb to recognized achievement. His father and mother emigrated to Cincinnati from Walzlarf, Germany in 1836, later moving to Boone County in the year of 1847, where Charles O. was born at Constance, January 19, 1862. His parents were John and Elizabeth Doleck Hemphling, respected and well to do farmers of the river bottom section of that community.

Mr. Hemphling was educated at Riverside, Ohio, now a part of the city of Cincinnati, and received his business training at a commercial school in the latter named place. As a young man just out of school he accepted a position selling structural steel for a Chicago firm covering most of the middle west in his travels.

About 1890 he returned to Constance where the next year he was united in marriage with Lillie Kostmeyer of that city on Dec. 1, 1891. They have two sons and one daughter, C. Liston, the eldest who operates Parlor Grove farm; Charlie, who manages Webb Hall, and Anita Florence, who married H. W. Bentham and now lives in Baltimore where her husband is in the wholesale sea food business. His daughter taught school in Boone County for a number of years and was a great favorite with her students as well as their parents. He has one daughter, Lillian O. Hemphling, now living in Constance, who was born in Cincinnati 31 years ago.

After his marriage Mr. Hemphling spent six years with the Jones Fertilizer Company then accepting a better position with Fleishman & Co. of Cincinnati for approximately the same length of time. To satisfy his personal ambition he then purchased the farms as stated previously in this story.

He always has been interested in his county and community and was one of the first actively engaged in the now successful attempt to obtain good roads and rural free delivery. He has never sought political office himself but his support is invariably solicited by those running for any elective position.

In 1920 he became interested in the marketing of tobacco and helped to organize the growers in 1921 to form the Burley Pool of which he was county chairman. He has been closely identified with all phases of this product since that time and is now president of the Warehousing Corporation controlling twenty-two house lead houses in eleven counties of the North end of the state and a redrying plant at Carrollton. He helped form the Boone County Farm Bureau and always has been an interested member. Ever willing to aid in any meritorious cause for the good of the county he rightfully can take his place as one of the leading citizens of Northern Kentucky.

It has been just forty years ago when at the age of twenty-one Mr. Hemphling began planting his

Liston Hemphling PARLOR GROVE FARM CONSTANCE, KY.

The family history of Liston Hemphling will be found with that of his father in another place in this edition. However, we will include here his own family biography which limited space keeps unduly brief. Mr. Hemphling was born at Constance, Ky., on December 24, 1893 the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Hemphling.

His boyhood days were spent in that locality and from his earliest years he was greatly interested in his father's work of rebuilding the Parlor Grove Farm to its present high state of prosperity and fruitfulness. He received his schooling at Saylor Park, then called Home City.

At the present time Mr. Hemphling resides and operates that farm, which contains one of the most productive apple orchards in this section of the country. Here couldn't be done in this country, some of which was only too true but had to be dealt with and overcome. For the spraying of trees, home made apparatus was utilized that was rather crude in arrangement as at that time there was no machinery for the work such as we have today, and very little was known of effective insecticide. They mixed their own spray material.

Probably the greatest interest of Liston Hemphling lies in the growing of fruit, however he is and has been for several years greatly interested in the organization of farmers for mutual benefit. Like his father he is ever ready to contribute and assist in any worthy project for the good of his community or Boone County as a whole.

History of the Sand Run Baptist Church

On March 20, 1819, because God had greatly blessed the people of Boone County and especially those of the North Bend Settlement, and owing to their remote residence from the meeting-house at Ballincubbin, it was therefore decided that the people in the North Bend Settlement form a separate and distinct congregation to be known as the Sand Run Church, having as its head our blessed Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ. The purpose as stated in their constitution was for the convenience of the people and the glory of God.

There were fifty-five charter members, among whom were the following: Bro. Chichester Matthews and wife, William Montague and wife, Mr. McCoy, Beverly Ward, Jeremiah Kirtley, Lewis Webb and wife, Nancy Watts, and Susan Goodridge. These were all leading members of the church at that time. There were also many negro slaves among the first members who attended the services regularly sitting in the gallery.

Having thus started, this congregation met in the homes of the different brethren until a meeting house could be secured. In February, 1820, the church received the deed to three acres of land on which to erect a meeting house. This building was completed in July, 1820. The cost of it was $2100, part of which was paid in cash and the remainder was paid in tobacco, which was the leading crop in this part of the country at that time. Only one relic remains of this first church building and that is the old chandelier which held the candles for lighting the building. The first pastor of Sand Run Church was the Rev. Chichester Matthews, who was faithful to the charge until his death in 1821. He was followed by Bro. Whitaker, who also served the church faithfully until his death in 1822. Other pastors of the church in earlier days were Rev. Robert E. Kirtley and Rev. Lee Utz.

They planted the first "delicious" apple trees in the state of Kentucky. At one time Parlor Grove was a picnic ground for Cincinnati people preceding that of Fellers Grove, now known as Coney Island. The Hemphling family cleared away the giant beech trees to make room for their growing orchards.

Reading the fruit growing Mr. Hemphling has an extensive dairy and is interested in the raising of pure bred Holsteins, averaging about 20 head. On June 9, 1915, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Mae McGlasson of Lebanon, daughter of William T. and Alice Quigley McGlasson, of that place. His wife is a former Boone County school teacher and first woman juror to serve on a criminal case in the Boone County Circuit Court. Her training was in the Ludlow public schools. They have one child, Vaughn Carlton Hemphling, aged thirteen.

Probably the greatest interest of Liston Hemphling lies in the growing of fruit, however he is and has been for several years greatly interested in the organization of farmers for mutual benefit. Like his father he is ever ready to contribute and assist in any worthy project for the good of his community or Boone County as a whole.

B. C. Kirtley GRANT, KY.

One of the most prosperous and respected men of the East Bend community is Bluford C. Kirtley, who has operated a farm in that section for many years and is an untiringly wide renown. He was born in Boone County on Nov. 8, 1884, the son of William and Missouri Kirtley, who lived a "Rabbit Hash." He attended school at Rising Sun, Ind., as there was no high school in Boone County at that time. He was married to Christine Stephens of Grant, Ky.

BLUFORD C. KIRTLLEY

on the 19th day of Feb. 1921. They have three children, Howard, Reuben and Marie Kirtley.

Mr. Kirtley is a thirty second degree Mason and a member of the K. of P. Lodge. He was a conscientious member of the Boone County Rural court from January 1, 1922 to January 1, 1930. He has been ever ready to respond to any movement for the good of the community or the county, and has done his part toward the up-building of this whole section. He greeted boldly is following.

Thus they continued to grow and prosper and in 1888 it was decided to enlarge and remodel the meeting-house. This was done at a cost of $1200.

The first Sunday School was organized by Bro. Owen Kirtley in 1812 and this Sunday School has been continued throughout the years. It has been a great blessing and had a great influence on the young lives that it has touched.

In recent years the church has organized a Young Men's League, a Women's Society, a Young People's Union, which, although not as strong as it was in the beginning, is still functioning, and a Woman's Missionary Society, which, by their contributions and special prayer seasons, is helping to carry the Gospel unto the uttermost parts of the earth.

In the fall of 1928 the church building needed repairing, so the members decided to again re-erect it, adding Sunday School rooms. Through the faithful and untiring efforts of the pastor, Rev. J. N. Powers, the aid of all the members and friends, and the help of Almighty God they succeeded in completing the building as it now stands.

The present membership of Sand Run Church is eighty-five. Rev. J. N. Powers, of Erlanger, Ky., is the pastor.

The original weather boarding was put on with hand made blacksmith nails brought saddle back from Virginia. The original roof was covered with walnut shingles put on with wooden pegs, the holes being bored with an old fashioned gimlet. This process of building took plenty of

When he first began there were many discouragements in orcharding. Old orchards were fast disappearing and many people laughed at the idea of making profit from orchards. Many said it

Today Mr. Hemphling and his sons specialize in Big Red apples and take off their hats to no man nor to any locality anywhere in the world that can produce finer ones than can be produced right here in old northern Kentucky on the banks of the beautiful Ohio River. Mr. Hemphling gives all the credit to his father, Liston, who is manager of the fruits and he has any amount of testimonials to verify these statements. BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

Arthur Alloway
WATERLOO ON ROUTE 2
BURLINGTON, KY.

Arthur Alloway of Waterloo has the distinction of being the only big league baseball player ever to come from Boone County. Perhaps the readers of this paper would recognize the name a little easier if we called him "Podge," the nickname under which he has passed for many years. At the present time he operates a farm on Route 2, Burlington, raising mostly tobacco. His great grandfather on his father's side, John D. Norris, fought with Perry on Lake Erie, coming here from the east early in the last century.

Arthur C. Roberts

MR. AND MRS. A. C. ROBERTS

Arthur C. Roberts of Verona, Ky., is a carpenter by trade and also engaged in wall paper decoration and painting, and he has also operated a small general store in that town since December, 1908. Mr. Roberts was born in Boone County near Verona on May 30, 1859, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Roberts.

He was united in marriage on October 6, 1897 with Lulu E. Powers, also of Verona, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Powers.

Mr. Roberts received the greater part of his education at the League Institute in Verona, Ky., under the management of Miss Annie E. Hamilton and Mr. N. B. Hamilton in the eighties. Mrs. Roberts was educated in the League under this management also.

For forty years Mr. Roberts has been a valued correspondent to the Recorder, and each week his items are eagerly read by hundreds of people. Mr. Roberts is loyal to the traditions of Kentucky and is admired by all who know him for his integrity of character and the honesty of his dealings. He is ever ready to contribute and cooperate in any worthy cause toward the betterment of his community.

Mr. Alloway has been married twice, his first wife being Minnie Fauss of Lawrenceburg, Ind. They were three children by this union—Mrs. Lyndell Davis of Tulsa, Okla., singer of renown; Mrs. E. S. Lanekin of Grant, Ky., and Henry O. Alloway of Oxford, Kan., who is in the oil business. His second wife was Belle Shinkle of Boone County whom he married April 26, 1914.

Mr. Alloway is a Mason and an active member in the Christian Church. His hobbies for hunting and nature his greatest hobby is as it should be, the great national game of baseball.

When the last Historical Edition of the Boone County Recorder was printed back in 1903 the Union Deposit Bank had not yet opened its doors for business but there was an article about the bank and a picture of Dr. M. J. Crouch who conceived the idea of organizing that institution and one of its chief promoters greatly interested in the success of the venture.

To quote the closing paragraph in the edition of twenty-seven years ago, "The Union Deposit Bank will begin its career well backed financially, well organized handsomely equipped and splendidly officered, and the Recorder trusts it will exist a thousand years hence." The Recorder still holds to that hope and since those words were written nearly three decades have passed and many changes have taken place both in personnel and business growth.

One of the staunchest supporters and most interested, however, is still on the job in the person of J. L. Frazier, who as cashier, helped organize the bank and now, though at the age when most men retire, is still as active as ever in guarding and protecting the depositor's money. A complete biography of Mr. Frazier will be found in another place in this edition.

If being well officered was a feature at the opening of the Union Deposit Bank it is no less an asset now for keen competition exists in banking circles these days just as it does in any line of business. The present officers and directors have maintained the confidence of the stockholders and depositors alike, fully meriting such approbation from every standpoint.

Lara Blankenbaker is now President of the bank with Owen Blankenbaker as Vice President, who with J. L. Frazier, C. C. Blankenbaker, J. W. Conner (who was vice president at the opening of the bank), T. E. Garrison and George C. Barlow comprise the present board.

The assistant cashier is Miss Lillian Bristol, who has been a faithful and trusted employee for twelve years. The writer doubts if any member of the bank was ever held in higher esteem by a community than Miss Bristol was in that section of the county.

Lurrel R. Miller

MR. AND MRS. L. R. MILLER AND NIECE BERTHA

For nearly one hundred years Landing, Ky., formerly Normansville, has had a successful woolen store, and with the exception of a few years, this store has been operated by the Miller family, the present owner being Lurrel K. Miller, who succeeded John C. Miller twenty years ago.

In the olden days Normansville was an important trading point where was located the only woolen mill in Boone county. This was later changed to a flour mill and was torn down in 1921. A picture of this old mill appears elsewhere in this edition.

Lurrel K. Miller was born at Sheldon, Ill., June 3, 1877, the son of Addison L. and Lucina Earl Miller. His father is dead and his mother is living in Mt. Auburn, Cincinnati. In 1883 Mr. Miller's parents moved to Kentucky, settling near Big Bone where they stayed a few years and later moved to Landing near the Ohio river. Lurrel grew up in that section and attended the local public schools there. On January 19, 1909 he was married to Bertha D. Miller, also of that place. Though of the same name there was no blood kinship.

This couple have no children however, they have been the same as father and mother to a favorite niece, Bertha Newberry, aged eight years who has lived with them for the last four years. Mr. Miller is a member of the Modern Woodmen. His greatest interest is in sheep raising. At his store in Landing he keeps in stock all sorts of necessities such as hardware, farming implements and notions, groceries, etc. He also handles considerable produce. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have made hundreds of friends thru their honesty and sincerity and willingness to contribute and aid in any worthy project toward the betterment of their own community, or for the good of the county.

Arthur B. Rouse
ERLANGER, KY.

Many columns of newspaper space has been used in the telling of important incidents pertaining to the life of Arthur B. Rouse and his activities as Congressman from the Sixth District of Kentucky, therefore the writer desires this facility of attempting to add to the latter of those accomplishments and will not try to go into detail with the space allowed in this edition. There is little doubt but what every reader of these lines has a personal acquaintance with Mr. Rouse, for he numbers his friends by the hundreds, especially in Boone County the place

ARTHUR B. ROUSE

Arthur B. Rouse was born at Burlington June 20, 1874, the son of Dudley and Elizabeth Hythe Rouse who were descendants of two of the oldest families in this section. His father was born here in 1840 and he died in 1912. The mother of Mr. Rouse was born in Boone County in the year of 1853 and passed away in 1920 surviving her husband eight years.

Arthur Rouse received his elementary education at the Burlington schools and later studied law at Hanover College, Hanover, Ind., where he received his degree. He started his law practice at Burlington which he conducted for a few years prior to accepting a secretaryship in Washington where he served in that capacity under two congressmen. In 1910 he was elected as Congressman from the Sixth District and served his constituents faithfully and loyally for six years. At the present time he is President of the Dixie Traction Company and holds the same office in the Dixie Traction Co. and the Ohio Valley Company. He is also Vice President of the Dempsey Motor Car Company at Erlanger.

He was united in marriage in 1910 with Minnie E. Kelly and they have two children, Arthur B. Jr., and Robert K. age 14 and 10 years respectively. Both of these children were born in Washington.

Mr. Rouse is a Presbyterian, Mason, P. M. and a member of the Summit Hills Country Club. He and his father before him were Treasurers of the Burlington Masonic Lodge holding the office for 36 continuous years. Mr. Rouse still retains his interest in Boone County and a love for her people.

Wallace (Hop) Clore
GRANT, KY.

Wallace Clore, commonly known as "Hop" to his hundreds of loyal friends, was born June 6, 1897 at Erlanger, the son of Perry and Annie Weaver Clore, both of whom are dead. He is one of the best liked and most successful young farmers in this community, and with his wife, the former Mary Lida Shinkle, whom he married on August 10, 1918, make one of the most popular couples among people of all ages. Mr. Clore attended the local schools at Bellevue where he showed an early talent for baseball, and is today one of the fastest outfielders in the Boone County League.

Mrs. Clore has been a correspondent for the Boone Co. Recorder for over fifteen years.

LADIES AID SOCIETY BIG BONE METHODIST
Big Bone Ladies Aid

The Big Bone Ladies Aid of the Methodist Episcopal Church was organized July 1894 with ten charter members. The first president, Mrs. G. W. Baker. The purpose being to contribute to the welfare of church financially, spiritually and socially.

The organization now has seventeen members, one of which is a charter member, being a member for 36 years. The society meets the first Thursday of each month at the home of the members. They meet for the entire day. The day is spent quilting and in a social way. A bountiful dinner is always served, and an enjoyable time is had by all. Sometimes the men come for dinner and enjoy an hour's fellowship together.

The present officers are: Mrs. J. L. Jones, president; Mrs. J. W. Aylor, Mrs. L. M. Moore, treasurer.

The Petersburg Cemetery

The Petersburg Cemetery is one of the best kept and on as solid and substantial a financial basis as any county cemetery in northern Kentucky.

This plot of ground was originally called "the graveyard" and was laid out into lots which sold for $25.00 each. As the years went on the original purchase price received was expended in the upkeep of the cemetery, leaving the treasury practically bare.

About this time Mrs. Martha Norris Collins died, leaving $500.00 in a trust fund, the interest of which was to be applied toward the upkeep of the entire cemetery. Later, Mrs. Nannie Berkshire Gates gave $100.00 to be added to this fund. Then Edgar C.

Riley became interested in the enterprise and with the help of others interested pushed it toward completion. John Ur Lloyd gave the magnificent sum of $5,000.00.

This was followed up by an additional $1,000.00 given by E. V. Chapin, a banker of Chattanooga, and by one of the residents of Petersburg. Other contributions were received from Mrs. Elizabeth Olds, $550.00; Mrs. L. N. Early, $100.00, and others in amount ranging from $50 to $100.00 until the permanent endowment totals over $11,000 and the fund is still growing.

The present official board of the Petersburg Cemetery is composed of B. H. Berkshire, president; C. Riley, secretary; Wm. Stephens, treasurer; L. S. Chambers and H. H. Grant, directors.

PICNIC DAY AT WALTON BAPTIST CHURCH

History of Point Pleasant Christian Church

(By Katherine White)

(Taken from History by B. F. McClellan.)
Let us in the fall of 1834 Walter Scott held a two weeks meeting in the old Point Pleasant School House, not a great distance from where the church now stands. The first week he had one convert, Mr. Platt Kennedy and the following week Mr. Park Walton made the good confession. The meeting closed but the seed sown during that meeting were bound to bring forth a fruit in time to come.

Then in the fall of 1839 Walter Scott again held a meeting—one of the most successful ever held at Point Pleasant, for the time had come when the seed sown in 1837 by this same good man had put forth an abundant harvest and all that was wanting was some one to proclaim the restoration of primitive Christianity and no one was better prepared to do so than Walter Scott.

After the close of this meeting the church was organized with sixty-one members and called Point a successful minister.

Between 1841 and 1846, Benjamin Franklin held several successful meetings for our church. His last meeting was in 1846. Bro. Philemon Vawter came to the church about this time, and served it successfully for fourteen years. Bro. Vawter was liked by everyone and at the close of his ministry, the church was at its zenith.

Then came Bro. W. S. Kene, who also served the church for fourteen years—he also left the church in a prosperous condition. Bro. Kene was a splendid church worker. Since that time we have had a number of good young men among whom were: T. M. Hurst, W. E. Rambo, J. A. Seiff, E. J. Curry, G. W. Watkins, Edgar D. Jones, Roger T. Noe, P. H. Duncan and R. H. Carter whom we have all known well.

In some respects we feel quite proud of "Old Point Pleasant Church," for she is the "mother" of churches. Constance is an off-spring of Point Pleasant. Burlington once drew on Point Pleasant but finally let her church go down. Florence also drew on Point Pleasant to start her church. Bullitsville organized from Point Pleasant.

WARD YAGER COMMONWEALTH ATT. WARSAW, KY.

WARD YAGER.

Ward Yager is an attorney-at-law residing at Warsaw, Ky., and though not a native of Boone County certainly has a place in this edition due to the hundreds of real friendships in this section that have come to him since he made his home here. At the time he successfully ran for the office of Commonwealth Attorney in the 15th District, He has made law breakers realize that this district is a good one to avoid and has held the respect and confidence of the best people because of this and other traits of high character.

His hobby is "associating with people" as all can attest who have enjoyed talking with him during his spare moments, which are rather few, as his energy keeps him constantly on the move.

He was born in Oldham County, the son of J. B. and Elizabeth Almy Yager, on the second day of July, 1861. He was married to Miss Ruth Graham, a Gallatin county girl. They have two girls, Zerelda and Billy Graham, both in school at Warsaw.

We asked Mr. Yager to submit a short impression of Boone County folk which is printed herewith.

During the summer of 1927 I entered Boone County as a stranger, visited most of the homes, met most of the people, and on every hand was given a cordial welcome.

From my association with Boone County I have observed that the people are to a large degree of the "stock" whose parents and grandparents, by their thrift and sturdy character, set a high standard of citizenship in the County.

The County is full of successful farmers who take great pride in the beauty of their land and homes. Many of the farmers are specialists; dairy, fruit growing, poultry, and other lines, and in all, high rank has been taken in the state and nation.

I have also observed that the young men and women who have gone to our colleges and universities and into business have gained for themselves positions of highest honor.

Indeed, Boone County possesses a successful, happy and contented citizenship.

History of Red Cross Public Health Work

(By Emmie B. Willis)

In November, 1925, I began the work of awakening the citizens of Boone County to a need for health education. At that time the local Red Cross had some $300.00 left from war drives. With that small sum, and a realization that before it was exhausted the idea of Public Health and its advantages and importance must be sold to the people of the county, I commenced this pioneering in my own home county. At that time there were accurately speaking four people in the county believing that the undertaking would prove worthwhile. From them and from the National Red Cross family who directed me, I drew my inspiration and courage to do my daily work.

Since the definition of Public Health was quite vague to the people generally, my first efforts were directed in defining it to the representative people of the communities which make up the county. This I did at churches, P. T. A.'s and mothers' meetings, then using the schools as my demonstration field.

I inspected the children in every school in the county that first year, notifying the parents of all defects found and personally giving medical advice and care. Sometimes I met with resentment on the part of parents, "I was interfering with their private affairs" to them at that time, but as time has passed they have wonderfully responded and after four years, health workers from adjoining counties and states have watched it with interest, the National Red Cross points to it with pride, and has often used its program in talks at Regional Conferences. When a Philippine nurse came to Washington in 1929, requesting of the Red Cross to be sent by them to two rural services where she might be helped in doing rural work in the islands, one of the places to which she was sent was to Boone County.

I have put the best of myself I could command into this work, and have received in return wealth untold, the confidence and trust of parents, the love and faith of little children, and my father who idolized me as a child, both of whom ever held before me the ideal of being a service to humankind, and I have drawn from my home and my memory of them a longing to help others to make their homes just such a source of inspiration.

My work in Boone County has spilled over the edges of the coun-

About this time they employed their first regular minister, "Old Father Masters," (as we were called) who was not at all extravagant in his price, as he preached for $12.00 per year.
By this time H. St. John Van Dake (among the first to unite with the church and a charter member) had become a good preacher and by the way the first preacher sent out by Point Pleasant.

At that time we had no colleges of the Bible to educate our preachers, but Bro. Van Dake would get his elders together, take them to the woods, seat them on a log and preach to them, asking them to criticize him, which was an inspiration to him as well as to the elders. Bro. Van Dake removed to Indiana and became one of the leading ministers.

Elder James Challen held two very successful meetings and had many additions. His last meeting was in 1847.

Father Masters became feeble in health and was unable to attend church regularly and the church employed James Weekly in about 1864 or 1865. The ministerial salary had begun to increase by this time and Bro. Weekly received $36.00 per year.

Some of the other ministers who served the church were: Mr. Bros. William Stratton of Cincinnati; Perrin of Covington; John Taft of Cincinnati, (a relative of Pres. Taft); who studied law under Judge Taft and Judge Burnett, but became dissatisfied with his profession, began preaching and made

The church erected in 1841 was razed early in 1913 and the present building erected and dedicated September 28th, 1913.

Since that time our congregation has not been very large. We have lost so many of our members by death and removal and some by indifference, but a few of us are still trying to keep things going as best we can and would be glad to have everyone in the community join in with us and try to build up our congregation to what it was a few years ago.

Dudley Rouse Blythe

Dudley Rouse Blythe, though still a young man, has been in business in Burlington for twenty-one years, and is one of the most influential men of his community and county. He was born on September 28, 1887, the son of George and Laura Huey Blythe, both of whom are natives of Kentucky and descendants of old families. In his younger days "Dud", as he is called by his friends, attended the local schools under good teachers, and was interested in farming up until the time he was twenty-two years of age. On October 26, 1909 he was united in marriage with Floss Botts, who was born at Petersburg on store building once owned by his uncle, after whom he was named, though owned by his father, George Blythe, at that time.

On June 7, 1921, this old store building burned to the ground with a loss to Mr. Blythe of $5,000, being only partly covered by insurance. A disaster of this kind to a young business man would be most disheartening at the best, and many would have given up in despair. Instead of admitting failure Mr. Blythe bought the lot on which the old building stood and promptly built a beautiful new two-story brick structure that was a decided asset to the town as well as to the owner, and a great improvement to the appearance of

The other child is Martha who was born on October 27, 1914. She is a very attractive girl and very popular with young and old. She is in her second year of high school and one of the best students at the Burlington institution. She enjoys basketball and was one of the valued players on her team last year.

In January 1910, following his marriage, Mr. Blythe started working for E. E. Kelly in his general store at Burlington. Here he showed unusual efficiency and made many friends, so that when he bought out Mr. Kelley on June 10, 1919 his own business was soon quickly established. At that time only about one-half the amount of stock was carried in his store that is found today at this modern mercantile establishment. He was a recognized leader in the politics of his county and his state, representing Boone County in many Democratic conventions. At one time he was a formidable candidate for Congress. He was the leading layman of the Methodist conference at Petersburg. A man of broad intellectualty, he collected the largest private library in his community. The works of many of the greatest authors of his time, notably those of Dickens, were brought to Petersburg by him and circulated there through his generosity.

The brightness of his mind and the warmth of his heart brought many friends to J. Frank Grant. His public spirited interest in his community and the enterprise which he displayed in connection with it made him its civic leader. He won the respect and the regard of his neighbors.

Hubert Conner

As president of the Hebron Bank Hubert Conner is well known to all in his community and has the respect and confidence of his fellowmen to the utmost degree. He is primarily a farmer at which occupation he has spent the greater portion of his life and has attained a success beyond most people. He resides on a beautiful place just east of Hebron where he raises general farm products and has a rumble of Holstein dairy cattle all of which are registered stock.

Mr. Conner was born October 7, 1872 at Hebron the son of John L. and Laura M. Heddes Conner, who were also born and reared in Boone County. His mother, Lillie Conner, died October 25, 1909.

Chas. Winfield Myers, Sr. FLORENCE, KY.

Charles Winfield Myers, Sr. holds an enviable position in the hearts of thousands of Boone County residents who have known him for many years and have traced him through the greater part of his life. At the present time and since the inception of his business in 1912, he holds the franchise for the sale of Ford cars and allied products.

He is noted throughout north-east Kentucky as being one of the fairest and squareest automobile dealers in this section, and the purchaser of any car from this company is always assured of complete service at the lowest possible prices.

Mr. Myers should take no little pride in the fact that once a man purchases a car from his agency he seldom goes elsewhere when another car is needed. Mr. Myers carries a complete line of Ford cars in stock, selling about one hundred seventy-five per year not counting the used cars which would run the total up to about three hundred fifty. He sells Standard Oil products, and has handled the Goodrich, Goodyear, and Firestone tires for many years.

Mr. Myers was born at Alexandria, Ky., on August 16, 1867, the son of Henry and Agnes Boyle Myers. His father was born in Germany, coming to this country at an early age and settling in Boone County in 1878.

The boyhood of Mr. Myers was spent in Ludlow and Florence where he attended the local schools. Later his father was in the meat business at Florence and young Myers assisted him in that line until 1892, when he started clerking for the F. L. Switzer store where he remained nearly four years. At this time he entered business for himself, opening a dry goods store in Florence in 1896, which he conducted until starting the garage in 1921.

Mr. Myers was married in January, 1891 to Georgia B. Snyder of Boone County, the daughter of James P. and Sallie Snyder. James Snyder was born in Virginia, coming to Boone County as a young man.

Mr. Myers has a cousin of Keuben Springer, Cincinnati capitalist, who gave Myer Hall to Cincinnati.

Mr. Myers is a member of the I. O. O. F. Venus Lodge No. 54 of Florence. He is president of the Florence Building and Loan Association and director of the Florence Deposit Bank. Both Mr. and Mrs. Myers are members of the Baptist church.

Mr. Myers is devoted to his business and derives his greatest pleasure from mixing with his customers and enjoying the companionship of his family. When anything is undertaken for the good of the community the assistance of Mr. Myers is invariably sought, and his willingness to cooperate and assist is never lacking if the cause is worthy.

WALTON ADVERTISER OFFICE, WALTON, KY.

Walton Advertiser

Fifteen years ago R. D. Stamer began publishing a small weekly paper with pages only nine by twelve inches and meagre advertising patronage. Their circulation did not exceed two or three hundred copies each week, and this mail was carried to the postoffice in a small chip basket. As the years went on the paper became popular locally and about fourteen years ago he associated himself with J. E. Wallace and began the publication of a six column, four page paper.

Mr. Wallace was an old newspaperman with both daily and weekly experience, just prior to this time being associated with his brother, D. B. Wallace in publishing a weekly paper at Warsaw, Ky. This Gallatin County publication was established in May, 1880 and was sold to other parties in 1906.

The Walton Advertiser began growing until it was found necessary to enlarge the paper to an eight page, seven column sheet. For seven years the paper was hand set, until about three years ago, realizing the necessity of the assistance of a compositor, it was installed together with a large eight column press.

The paper which once was carried in a chip basket now requires over twenty-five mail sacks each week for mailing. Its good efforts for Walton and the surrounding communities has been recognized, and the press owners have refused several offers of late to sell to different parties. This establishment is also equipped with a nice job printing department that added materially to the revenue of the business.

C. Scott Chambers

A biographical history of progressive citizens and old families of Boone County would not be complete without a sketch of the life and work of our leading undertaker and worthy citizen, C. Scott Chambers of Walton. Like so many other men who have made their mark in the world, he was born and reared on the farm. He attended the county schools of the neighborhood, finishing his elementary education at the Aurora High School, Aurora, Ind. After this he engaged in farming for several years, successfully managing and operating his father's extensive acres.

On November 7, 1900 he was united in marriage with Alta Terrill of Petersburg, daughter of John and Mary Terrill of that place. They have two very attractive daughters, Alene, who was born on July 25, 1902, and who is the wife of Reuben Conner, cashier of the Citizens Bank of Erlanger. The second daughter is Mary Scott, who was born on May 26, 1904, and who married Wallace K. Grubbs, both of whom are associated with her father in business. Mr. Chambers also has a beautiful little granddaughter, Jeanette Chambers Grubbs, aged nine months.

joined with his ability makes him one of the leading undertakers in northern Kentucky.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Grubbs are also licensed embalmers and undertakers and are qualified in all modern methods of the profession. Mrs. Grubbs was one of the first lady undertakers in the state. Although many fine compliments have been passed to Mr. Chambers relative

C. SCOTT CHAMBERS AND FAMILY

Louisville came to the Chambers home on a visit about two years ago and when the parting-time came she had become so attached to him and his family that she wanted to remain, so out of sympathy and the pure kindness of his heart he has kept this little girl and given her parental care, which she seems to realize for she says, "I have the best daddy in the world."

Mr. Chambers came from Petersburg to Walton about twenty years ago and entered the undertaking business. By his industry, courage and kind consideration of his fellow men, he has built up a large patronage not only in his own community but in the adjoining counties as well.

On deciding to make this profession his life work he attended the Cincinnati College of Embalming, taking a course preparatory to trying the state examination. This he passed with highest honors, and he is both a licensed embalmer and undertaker in the three states of Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio. He has an up-to-date establishment equipped with all the modern facilities necessary for his business, and he spares neither time nor expense to attain perfection and today has an equipment second to none in the state.

His latest addition was the purchase of a new hearse and a new invalid coach and ambulance, having the best people they deserve the best equipment." His personality and kindness to others comto his direction of funerals, this writer wishes to add that his grave service is second to none. The very latest type tents, awnings, and lowering devices make this service one of beauty, and Mr. Chambers is himself a genius in the arranging of flowers.

Below follows a concise history, or as near so as space will allow, of one of the oldest families in this section whose family on both sides are of Scotch-Irish descent. C.

HOME OF C. SCOTT CHAMBERS

Scott Chambers was born in the Petersburg precinct on February 18, 1871, the son of Alfred E. and Laura Scott Chambers, the father a native of Boone County and the mother of Kenton.

The writer will take up Mr. Chambers' paternal ancestors first. The great grandfather of Mr. Chambers was Robert Chambers,

Edgar Surface Graves

One of the happiest and most congenial families in Boone County is that of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Surface Graves. Undoubtedly their happiness has been conceived because of their willingness and readiness to un the tight lacing at all times and under all circumstances. They reside on a beautiful farm near Lebanon where they raise general farm products and specialize in registered Jersey cattle and Chester white pigs. The most of Mr. Graves' father William and grandfather Johnson were born on the farm where they now live. His mother and her parents were from Ohio, whose ancestors were originally from Virginia.

The parents of Mrs. Graves were natives of England. Her father Joseph Bullock, was born March 16, 1835, at West Luddeley in Yorkshire, England. Her mother, Mary Elizabeth Abbe, son was born in Liverpool, England on July 23, 1849. They were married in York, England June 25, 1871, less than a month later coming to America where they resided in Cincinnati for a few years. The most of their married life was spent in Lebanon, where both passed away causing the parents to be left alone.

Edgar S. Graves was born at Bullittsville on May 18, 1881, the son of Wm. Gaines and Mary Jane Surface Graves. Mr. Graves spent his boyhood days around Hebron, attending the local public schools at Bullittsville and Hebron and received his further education in private schools.

On June 21, 1906 Mr. Graves was united in marriage with Grace K. Bullock, the daughter of parents named above. They have two children living—Robert Linton, aged 17, and Wm. Edgar, aged 9. The first child, James Alvin, who was born on June 2, 1903, died at the age of sixteen.

Robert Linton, the eldest living, was graduated from the 1930 class of Hebron High School, and has been a great worker of the 4-H Club. In 1928 he was Kentucky State corn growing champion.

Mr. Graves is a member of the Masonic Lodge, and though never aspiring to political office, he served eight years as Deputy Assessor. Mr. Graves is known throughout the county as a man of the highest character, whose honest achievements have come about through an intensive knowledge of up-to-date farming operations, and his willingness to co-operate toward the upbuilding of the county which has never been questioned.

Below follows a concise history, or as near so as space will allow, of one of the oldest families in this section whose family on both sides are of Scotch-Irish descent. C.

AURORA, IND.

Although away from Boone County, thirty years, as far as his residence is concerned, O. M. Rogers has never lost track of his home county and is as much interested in the people of this section as though he had lived here during all those years. He is an attorney at law with a practice second to none in this territory with many cases in the Boone courts and those of Kenton County. His son, James, a graduate of the law school at the University is associated with him. Their office is located in the Covington Trust Company building at Sixth and Madison streets, Covington. Mr. Rogers has a beautiful home situated in one of the most desirable residential sections at 310 Erlanger Road, Erlanger.

His hobbies are flowers and birds.

Mr. Riddell was elected a director of the First National Bank at Aurora, Indiana in 1910. In 1914 he was elected President of the First National Bank.

Although away from Boone County for sixty-five years Mr. Riddell has kept in constant touch with this county and its people. His busy, pleasant life has been spent across the river, but he still holds dear the memories of his happy boyhood days at Petersburg.

Mr. Chambers' maternal grandfather by the name of Cleveland Scott was born in Kenton County, and he married Alvira Collins, a native of Burlington. Cleveland Scott's father and great grandfather of Mr. Chambers was Elmore Scott, who was a native of Virginia and one of the early settlers of Kenton County. LITTLE JEANETTE GRUBBS, WALTON, KY.

John L. Vest

No man in Boone County, or for that matter in northern Kentucky is held in greater esteem by his fellow citizens than John L. Vest, of Walton, whose successful business career has been rounded out by years of service, friendship and charity to others. He is a lawyer of the highest type whose business has been confined principally to all kinds of civil and corporation law. As a matter fact, he has had but three criminal cases since being admitted to the bar and these were taken against his wish. He has an extensive private practice and is retained as counsel for many prominent business and banking institutions.

John Lewis Vest was born near Verona on November 13, 1875, the son of Carter Hamilton and Miranda Jane Lewis Vest. His ancestry dates back on his father's side to the pioneer families of this state. His great grandfather, also of the name of John Vest, was born in Virginia on March 12, 1811 and died in Boone County on March 28, 1848. There was a family of four brothers who came from England prior to the Revolutionary War. Two stayed in Virginia, one mi-

Boone County Chevrolet

Three and one-half years ago the franchise for the sale of Chevrolet cars in Boone and Gallatin counties was taken over by John L. Vest of Walton, with whom is associated Lester Barrett and in the capacity of manager of the Boone Co. Chevrolet Co. The organization is housed in an especially constructed building on Main-st. with a 50-ft. frontage and a depth about the same. The business is one of the most successful in this territory, and this company is the only Chevrolet dealer in the two above mentioned counties. They handle altogether about five hundred cars each year, new and used. They keep a complete line of Chevrolets on display at all times, including runabouts, phaetons, coupes, coaches and sedans and trucks.

A full line of parts of all kinds are carried in stock and most modern and improved machinery will be found in the repair shop. They employ three service men, all of whom are graduates of the Chevrolet Service School and are competent to give the unexcelled service given by this organization to all purchasers of their cars. William M. Collins of Crittenden is their salesman and he has been most successful in this branch, being a member of the One Hundred Car Club, a Chevrolet organization.

He remained there until 1904 when he came to Walton, where he has remained since that time. The first six years of his sojourn in Walton, he was again associated with J. G. Tomlin and on January 10, 1910 he arranged a full partnership with Mr. Tomlin in this business that lasted until the death of Mr. Tomlin in September 1919. Since that time he has been alone and has built up a lucrative and extensive practice.

On January 3, 1906 he was united in marriage with Edna May Loomis of Walton County, who was born on May 11, 1883 the daughter of Walter T. and Georgia Coleman Loomis, both of whom were natives of Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Vest have one child, a son Walter Dudley, who was born on March 6, 1908. He is a graduate of the Walton High School and received his B. S. degree from the University of Kentucky in June, 1930. He is now taking a post-graduate course at the University in the study of law. During the time of his university days he was a member of the school band and of the student council, and he was president of Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Besides his law practice Mr. Vest is financially interested in many diverse enterprises, principally as a large stockholder of the Income Insurance Co. of Lexington, of which he is a director; the Anglin Ave. Tobacco Warehouse of Lexington, of which he is a director and secretary; and the Economic Insulation of Cincinnati, where he is a director and one of the large stockholders. He is also a member of the board of directors of the Bank of Independence.

Mr. Vest has all degrees of Masonry up to the thirty-second. He is a member of the Konarsk Shrine Temple of Louisville, the Indra

Dr. Edgar D. Jones

Benj. H. Berkshire
PETERSBURG, KY.

(By W. D. Atwood)

Back in 1902 fate sent a strapping minner to Boone Co. fresh ly equipped with an education for his profession and natural talents for his calling that few others ever possessed. Whether Edgar D. DeWitt Jones knew of these talents is uncertain, but pursuing the philosophy of the parable in that week of Books he had learned so well, he utilized those talents so tellingly from the time that he began preaching at Old Pt. Pleasant in Boone County that he soon attained a prominent place in the sun of the world of America's Clergy men.

Though Edgar DeWitt Jones was born in Texas he lays claim to Kentucky citizenship that came from his heart. Should any other county than Boone claim him as a native son a controversy would arise that would be heard the world around. With a style that was so eloquent, so captivating, yet at the same time plain, in manner and in fact there are few Christian pulpits in Boone that he has not filled at some time or other since he began his career here nearly thirty years ago.

While Dr. Jones no doubt loves Boone county for her people and the fact that she cradled his intellectual career, yet a certain young lady, the then Miss Frances C. Willis, now Mrs. Edgar DeWitt Jones, no doubt played a principal role in moulding his affections for this part of the county.

Dr. and Mrs. Jones have five children, two girls and three boys. They include Edgar DeWitt, Jr., Dorothy Louise, Frances Virginia, (now Mrs. John R. Walker) and Robert R. and Westbrook W. Dr. Jones as said before was born in Texas, first seeing the wonders of this universe at Hearne, Texas, December 18, 1876. He was the son of DeWitt Clinton and Virginia R. Jones, both of whom passed away when he was just a boy.

Dr. Jones at present is the pastor of the Central Christian Church at Detroit. It is one of the largest churches in that vast city and the building of which serves as a crowning achievement of Dr. Jones. He was instrumental in its construction and it may recall to his mind the days and weeks in 1902 that he spent in securing funds for the erection of the Frangier Christian church just over the Boone County boundary. Reverting to his early career in 1903 he was called to the Franklin Circle Church in Cleveland, O. where he stayed until 1906. During the next four years he was pastor in the First Christian Church at Bloomington, Illinois. Feeling that his work had been accomplished in that place he moved to Detroit in 1920 to accept his present pastorate.

Besides his many duties as pastor of his early church he found time to write a book called "Fairhope, the Annals of a Country Village" which was published in 1917 by the McMillan Company of New York. The scenes of this book are laid in Boone County, although the characters are fictitious and drawn from many sources.

Dr. Jones is a 33rd Degree Mason and a member of the Kanpa Sigma Fraternity. He is a lover of birds and among his hobbies are mountain climbing and collection of rare books.

John William was married shortly after the war to Melicent McNeely, the event taking place on October 30, 1916. She was also a native of Petersburg and was born there on January 8, 1911. John William died March 2, 1931, and his wife August 19, 1931. Melicent McNeely was the daughter of John and Rebecca Alloway McNeely, the former a native of Pennsylvania, who died here in 1881 at the age of 88. His wife was a life-long resident of Boone county. She died in 1904 just a year after her husband's death.

Elith Norris, the wife of Benjamin H. Berkshire, was born October 18, 1869 the daughter of John H. and Margaret A. Norris. Her paternal grandfather John Norris was of Maryland stock and came here for the Indian wars after serving in the county during the stirring days of 1812. He was a naval officer on Com. John L. Vest received the most of his elementary school training under the tutelage of Miss Nannie E. Hamilton in her famous school at Verona. From there he went to the National Normal University at Lebanon, Ohio and when at about the age of eighteen he started the study of law during the time he was teaching school in various places. He spent two and one-half years in the law office of J. G. Tomlin at Walton and was admitted to the bar in 1899. At this time he went to the county seat town of Independence where he "hung out his shingle" and established a considerable practice.

Mr. Vest is interested in the home he built in Walton in 1912 and takes great pleasure in looking after the grounds and his garden during the cool of the summer evenings.

He has never sought political office but because of lack of interest in his country, because there are none more willing to contribute to worthy causes and uphold the community than Mr. Vest.

Richwood Church

On the first Sabbath in May, 1884 Richwood Church, within the bounds of Ebenezer Presbytery was organized by the Rev. C. Harrison by virtue of an order therefor by said Presbytery on a petition of the following thirteen individuals:

Mr. Elisha Hudson and Mrs. Peter Hudson.
Mrs. Mary Hughes.
Dr. E. Smith Clarkson and Mrs. Caroline F. Clarkson.
Mr. Wm. H. McMenzie and Mrs. Eliza M. McMenzie.
Mr. Eph. M. Carter.
Mrs. Phoebe Ballard.
Miss Armstrong.
Mrs. S. Harrison.
Sarah Frances Johnson.

On that same day the church proceeded to elect Eph. M. Carter and Wm. H. McMenzie as elders. This was signed by Wm. H. McMenzie who was session clerk. This read the first page in the record books of the Richwood Presbyterian Church, written ninety-six years ago.

Like the United States, this church was organized with thirteen original members. The first church was organized in a school house and Mr. Harrison engaged for half his time as Stated Supply on a salary raised by popular subscription. At the same time he was a Missionary employed by the General Assembly Board.

In January, 1885 a protracted meeting was carried on from house to house. When we think of what those county roads must have been at that season of the year we can appreciate the interest that must have been in evidence to carry on a meeting which lasted one week.

The first Richwood Church was started by Rev. Samuel C. Clore in 1842, though no accurate record shows exactly when the church was organized. Rev. John W. White, who was pastor of the church from 1837 to 1847 and solicited the funds for the erection of this church by the people.

From 1866 to 1867 the church was served by Rev. W. G. White

John Samuel Clore

BELEVIEW, KY.

John Samuel Clore holds the very responsible position of assistant cashier at the Citizens Deposit Bank at Bellevue, and takes his rightful place as one of the leading business men of the community. He was born in this same town on July 15, 1900, the son of Robert H. and Belle B. Huey Clore.

On July 3, 1922 he was united in marriage with Laura Luella Rogers, this couple having two children—Leiland Rogers, born May 19, 1926 and David Dean, born on February 11, 1928. Mr. Clore was born on July 18, 1901, the daughter of William B. and Ella G. Scott Rogers.

Like his grandfather, John Samuel Huey who served with Morgan's Rough Riders, John Clore also felt the lure of adventure with the armies. He enlisted in the United States Army August 1, 1917 at the age of seventeen. He was discharged July 24, 1919 at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Ky.; stationed at the following camps:

Edward Maurer

LOUISVILLE, KY.

EDWARD MAURER.

Although Edward Maurer left his home at Bellevue in 1869, beginning his apprenticeship as an Ohio River pilot and has been away during all of these thirty-one years, he still retains a great love for old Boone and the memories of his happiest days spent here as a boy. He retained his legal residence in Boone County until 1915 and voted here each election until that time. He has risen far in his chosen profession, now holding the position of United States Local Inspector of Hulls and Steam Vessels at Louisville, with his office in the Customs Building at that city. He resides at 2810 W. Kentucky.

He was twenty-two years of age when he started out to learn the winding channels of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, and in the capacity of beginner he served on various steamships plying between Cincinnati and New Orleans. Though river traffic at this time was not at its previous height much cargo was carried that since has been conveyed by trucks traveling over

Cecil Leslie Gaines

FLORENCE, KY.

The gathering place for young and old in Florence is the confectioner, store owned and operated by Cecil Leslie Gaines and wife. Their ability to make friends has been a decided asset toward the success of this business venture. They carry in stock, candies of all kinds, cigars, cigarettes, soft drinks, stationery, drug sundries, and have lately added to their stock for periodicals, handling magazines of all kinds.

Cecil Leslie Gaines was born at Petersburg, Ky., on August 21, 1886, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gaines, who is the former judge of the Circuit Court of Boone County. The biography of Judge Gaines appears elsewhere in this issue.

In his younger days Mr. Gaines was interested in farming, later accepting a position as cashier of the Erlanger Deposit Bank, where he stayed two and one half years when he was offered a better position as cashier of the Citizens Bank.

After nearly three years at this latter occupation ill health caused him to move back to his farm near Lima, where he stayed about ten years. On September 18, 1926 he purchased the confectionery and lured room at Florence where he now operates.

On August 28, 1907 Mr. Gaines was united in marriage with Virginia Snyder of Burlington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Snyder. Her father was a prominent member of the Schools of Boone County for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Gaines have two children—Mildred and Helen, aged twenty and fifteen respectively.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gaines are active in the church at Florence and were sincere workers for the new building recently erected. Mr. Gaines holds a prominent place in the business, social and civic life of his county due to his willingness to contribute and aid in every worthy project for the betterment and upbuilding of his town and county.

He sailed from Hoboken, N. J., on the French liner Maui at 6 a. m., February 23, 1918 and after thirteen days at sea landed at St. Nazaire, France.

Mr. Clore was gassed while at the front, but did not leave his company until after they had been sent back to the camp. He, with a number of others, was sent to the hospital at Longdon, France for treatment, but in a few days thought he was alright and went back to his company and from there to Fifth Division Hdqrs. as a mounted dispatch messenger.

They moved into EREB Luxembourg, and here had their headquarters until they moved to Treves, Germany. who also organized a school called White Haven where many young people for miles around were educated. The buildings are still standing and are owned by Mr. Lynn Frutkin of Union, Ky. In 1870 Rev. E. W. Bedinger was called to the pastorage of Richwood and Florence churches. He also had preaching points at Union and Walton. During a protracted meeting while he was pastor over twenty persons were added to the church.

It does not appear in any of the records of the church that there were more or less a missionary church, but in looking backward from this point of view we find it was organized by a missionary under the General Assembly Board and that in 1845, nine years after its inception it was ordered that a missionary sermon be preached and that Rev. Charles H. White preach such a sermon, and a collection was taken for his support as a missionary to be supported

Next to his family Mr. Berkshire is interested in the growth and development of his county. He has never sought elective office, though he served as a deputy collector of internal revenue at Petersburg under the Wilson administration for a period of eleven months.

This writer has enjoyed the privilege of meeting both Mr. and Mrs. Berkshire several times and, on hot days for many years to come will enjoy them as the delightful breezes and wonderful view to be found at their beautiful home high above the banks of the winding Ohio.

the improved roads. Passenger traffic on steamers of those days was greatly in excess of the present time as the passenger lists now number only those going for pleasure and relaxation.

Captain Maurer received his license as first-class pilot on Sept. 5, 1900 and Masters license in 1902. His first berth as pilot was on the steamer Henry M. Stanley. For seventeen years he served as Master or pilot mostly in the Louisville and Cincinnati trade on the steamers, City of Cincinnati and City of Louisville. According to his own statement, Capt. Maurer's steamship career was uneventful, but to this writer the fact of safely transporting hundreds of lives and thousands of dollars in cargo day in and day out is certainly something to be proud of. Mr. Maurer covered approximately 1,000,000 miles in the navigation of steamers and never experienced any serious accident.

There were four brothers in the Maurer family, each one being licensed Masters and pilot and Edward had the pleasure of having his brother, William Maurer, who died in the year 1908, as his partner pilot for four years on the steamer City of Cincinnati. That partnership and the thoughts of passing in the night-time of his home located on the river bank at Bellevue, where there was always a light shining from the window or door in the hand of mother or sister as answer to the whistle signal, always will be fond memories and will offset the many dark and stormy nights faced in such a vocation.

Capt. Maurer was the last regular pilot on the late steamer City of Louisville, which was lost in the time as the passenger lists now number only those going for pleasure and relaxation.

Grant (Bellevue) on July 24, 1907, the son of Joseph and Rebecca Cook Maurer. Both of these parents are now deceased, but all of their married life was spent at Bellevue.

In December, 1915, Mr. Maurer was united in marriage with Martha Board, who was born and reared at Brandenburg, Ky. Her parents were John and Martha Board. This couple have two children, Joseph E. and Frances E. Maurer, ages eleven and nine respectively. After a marriage of Mr. Maurer began considering giving up steamboating in order that he might enjoy the pleasures of home life. He took the competitive examination for the position of Local Inspector of Steam Vessels, and upon December 4, 1917, was appointed local inspector at Pittsburgh and was transferred to the Louisville office in September, 1922, which position he now holds.

Mr. Maurer is a thirty-second degree Master, M. J. O. O. F. and Rebekah. He belongs to the High Twelve and Proprietor clubs, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, the National Federation of Federal Employees. He is also a member of the Board of Managers of the Louisville and Nashville Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Maurer is interested mostly in his home and family.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER

Harmon Hayes Jones BEAVER LICK, KY.

No more delightful family can be found in northern Kentucky than that of Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Hayes Jones at Beaver Lick. Every member of the family is intensely interested in one or more farm projects that will ultimately prove of vast profit to both themselves and the community.

Mr. Jones was born at Bullittsville Sept. 7, 1893, the son of Thomas and Jennie Acra Jones. Thomas was born on June 8, 1850 and died May 25, 1920. His wife was born on December 12, 1854 and passed

Wilford Monroe Rice WALTON, KY.

Wilford Monroe Rice is the youngest bank president in the state of Kentucky whose ability far exceeds ones expectations of only the youth of this man is considered. He is now at the head of the Walton Equifruit Bank. His experience has been varied in this line and his training includes both large and small town institutions. His early years of banking were spent in one of the big financial houses of Cincinnati and he was ready to accept the position of cashier of the newly formed Hebron Deposit Bank when called thence only twenty years of age at that time.

Mr. Rice was born at Newport, Ky., September 13, 1900 and is a member of one of the old and prominent families of that state. The Rices have been Kentuckians for more than a century and through four generations. His great grandfather was a native of England and on coming to America located at Kalamazoo Springs near most progressive farmers in this whole section and the cooperation he gives to his children could well be used in any line of activity in the United States. He is a great lover of registered Holstein cattle and has a wonderful herd of these dairy cows, numbering over twenty head. General farming operations are carried on and he always raises much corn and alfalfa. As with others in this section, of course, tobacco is also a good paying crop most of the time.

Mr. Jones grew up amid surroundings of the typical Kentucky stock and horse raising gentleman farmer. In her girlhood days she was taught perfection in cooking and housekeeping, as well as learning to ride from her earliest years. She was never defeated at any Fair in a contest for the quickest harnessing and hitching in of a horse. She also won many prizes in Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio as a champion lady rider, and won first prize at the Carlisle (O.) Fair. No lady in the county can surpass her record for prize winning on cokes, rolls, bread, jellies, preserves, pickles and Theopoulus.

Teopoulus Rice, the grandfather of the young Walton Banker, was born in Boone County and spent nearly his whole life as a live stock trader and breeder at Walton. He died while on a visit to Louisville in 1896. He was married to Elizabeth Records, a native of Boone who died at Walton. Wm. Felix Rice, their son, was born at Walton in 1874, was reared and educated there and for a number of years has lived at Latonia and Covington. He is a conductor for the L. & N. railroad. He is a Democrat in politics, is a member of the Walton Baptist Church and is affiliated with the I. O. O. F. and the J. O. U. E. M. societies. He married Pearl Sioethen at Newport. She was born at Knoxville in 1880 and died in Latonia in 1901.

Wilford Rice, only child as far as mother, was reared at Walton finishing his high school course as a sophomore. He took a course in Commercial Law and bookkeeping at Miller's Business College in Cincinnati and in December 1917 began his active career. For several months he was postmaster at Walton and then became a bookkeeper in the Fifth-Third National Bank of Cincinnati and had been advanced to the auditing department when he resigned to accept the position at Hebron as cashier of that bank. Mr. Rice was only seventeen when America entered the World War but he proved the value of his patriotic services by doing splendid work as a salesman in the War Savings Stamp drive. One day he sold $20,000 worth of these stamps and another day $70,000 worth.

On April 24, 1930 Mr. Rice was united in marriage with Grace Gladys Dudgeon, daughter of W. T. and Mattie McCormick Dudgeon. Her father was postmaster at Walton the time of her marriage and she, like her husband, is a descendant of old pioneer stock.

To accurately describe the honors given to Wilford Rice, both in Cincinnati, and in his home county would take more space than this history would permit. He has held offices and been the leader in many enterprises of civic and religious nature besides those given to him in his profession by reason of his personality and ability and at present is editor of the Banking Bulletin of the American Institute of Banking. Few men get as far in their chosen vocation in a whole lifetime as Mr. Rice has accomplished before reaching the age of thirty. Those who know him predict many more honors to come and firmly believe that his talents will be proved by yet larger undertakings and accomplishments.

Alpha Rogers GRANT, KY.

In focusing the spotlight of public opinion on the life of Al Rogers of Grant, Ky., we find revealed a man respected, honored, and looked up to by his hundreds of friends and countless acquaintances. Al Rogers was born near Bellevue on November 21, 1872, the son of James and Laura Walton Rogers. His family on both sides is of old Kentucky stock that came to this state from Virginia shortly after the close of the Revolutionary War. His great grandfather was the first of his family in Boone County and made his home on what has later been called the old Goodrich place, not far from Bellevue on the old Burlington Pike.

Mr. Rogers attended the local grade schools at his home town, went to high school at Rising Sun, Ind., and studied at the famous Morgan Academy at Burlington until the death of Henry Newton. Immediately following his school days he commenced his farming operations, which he has continued up to the present time, though, in 1903 he purchased a general store at Bellevue which he conducted thirteen years, selling out to Rogers Henley, the present proprietor. The beautiful farm of 135 acres now operated by the son of Mr. Rogers was purchased from Mr. Henley's father about fourteen years ago.

On December 12, 1893 Mr. Rogers was united in marriage with Viola Huse, daughter of James and Laura Garnett Huse, who resided on a farm near Bellevue.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers have one child, James Edward, who married Laura Whitcomb, of Harrodsburg, this event taking place on June 10, 1920. Edward Rogers has two children, both boys—Edward, Jr., aged eight, and Alpha Lee, aged seven. Edward attended the Bellevue high school from which he graduated in 1913, and spent three years at Centre College in Danville, where his advanced education was interrupted by the World War. He entered the service of his country, being honorably discharged after three years of active service. He is a member of the S. A. E. Fraternity and gets his greatest pleasure from all kinds of sports, especially football. He was pitcher on the Centre College Baseball team.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers have made their home in their beautiful residence at Bellevue for a number of years, and the son has operated his father's three farms for about ten years. They are very successful in the raising of horses, cattle and general farm produce.

Mr. Al Rogers can be said to have no hobby, unless it be politics, which greatly interests him. He has been solicited to run for various offices, but he has never sought or wanted that preference. He and his whole family are members of the Baptist church and are hard workers and contributors to their church at Bellevue.

Mr. Rogers is and has been a director of the Peoples Deposit Bank since 1912. A spirit of cooperation and unselfishness is manifest in the daily life of Al Rogers, and no one in Boone County has been more ready to believe in anything toward the upbuilding and betterment of his community and country.

Edwin M. Johnson WALTON, KY.

The spot on which the Christian Church of Walton now stands was the location of a log cabin housing the great-grandfather of Edwin M. Johnson, who as a Revolutionary soldier left Ft. Washington and settled at Walton about the year 1790. If not the first, it was one of the first houses built in that town. The grandfather of Mr. Johnson was born in this crude cabin in the year of 1790. He grew up in that section, married and lived his entire life in Boone County. Rev. Lafayette Johnson, the father of Edwin, was born in 1816 on a farm about one mile from town.

Edwin M. Johnson, the subject of this sketch, was born on his father's farm July 5, 1880. As stated above, his father was Lafayette Johnson and his mother was Frances Mullins Johnson, both of whom are dead. Mr. Johnson was married to Mary E. Perovich. They have three children—Jesse, Sarah, and Natalia. Mr. Johnson is a competent farmer, and at the present time is serving as a conservation officer. He was honored by the good people of this section when he was elected a member of the Masonic Lodge, and his hobby is the conservation of wild life.

Mr. and Mrs. Rogers have one child, James Edward, who married Laura Whitcomb, of Harrodsburg, this event taking place on June 10, 1920. SYCAMORE TREE ON HARMON JONES FARM 31 FEET 7 INCHES IN CIRCUMFERENCE

No girl has more friends in Boone County, nor has attained a higher place in the hearts of the youngsters, than the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Virginia Pearl. She was captain of her basketball team at the Walton High School and was the star player on the team. She has been a member of the 4-11 Club for the past seven years and is the only club girl that advertises certified chicks that she ships to all parts of the world, having the finest golden buff Plymouth Rocks for size, type and color. Her excellence in school work, athletics and the breeding of poultry has given her a wide acquaintance and made her hundreds of friends.

Mr. Harmon Jones though unassuming in character and asking little from others, has rapidly taken his place as one of the most influential men in Boone County. With the exception of his family and farm the interest of his community and this section is foremost in his mind and he is always ready and willing to cooperate for anything toward the upbuilding of Boone County.

Joseph H., the next oldest son, is also a 4-11 club boy who has the name of being a prize raiser that is hard to beat. He has never been defeated at any Fair in Hampshire and Chester White sows, and he also won a golden medal in algebra among freshmen over all at the Boone County Tourney. Joseph is a real school boy and is interested as much in that work as he is in his farm projects.

Jerome Bristow Respass

Francis Marion Voshell
PETERSBURG, KY.

Francis M. Voshell resides at Petersburg where he is interested in farming on a rather large scale. He is particularly noted as a raiser of fine hogs, and last year had the second highest ton litter in Boone County and one of the best in the state.

He is a descendant of an old Kentucky family, energetic, thrifty and a man of such character that he is looked up to by all who know him. He was born in 1877 near Petersburg, Ky., the son of George C. and Mahala Johnson Voshell, who formerly lived at Aurora, Ind. In 1908 he was united in marriage with Elizabeth J. Lows of Moores Hill, Ind. They have two children—Francis Leroy, age twenty-one, and Leslie Wilson, age thirteen. Mr. Voshell is a member of the I. O. O. F., at Moores Hill, and a member of the Modern Woodman Lodge of America at Aurora, Ind.

In connection with hog raising, the above is interested in raising and breeding of grade and registered Jersey cattle. At the present time fourteen cows are being milked and a nice bunch of young heifers, growing into future cows, are being raised on the place.

John R. Coppin Co.

Founded, owned and operated by Kentuckians for Kentuckians, the John R. Coppin Company departs from its store at Macjonesay, and Seventh-st. Covington, is truly a Kentucky institution in which not a few Boone counties are interested.

Established in 1873, one of the most unsettled epochs of American history, the Coppin store had a very modest beginning. It survived the rigors of the period and gradually expanded under the guidance of its founder until department after department was added in order that the public of Northern Kentucky might be better served.

In 1915, the Coppin store was acquired by Frank E. Thorpe and during the last fifteen years the expansion and development of the popular establishment has been notable. Innovations and improvements have created so that the steadily legions of patrons would be served quickly, efficiently and satisfactorily.

Within the last year even greater strides to add to the comfort and convenience of its clientele were taken by Coppin executives. One of the most outstanding factors in the success of the store is the attitude of courtesy and friendliness which the management always strives to have manifested by each member of its organization. The need of this store and its instructions to its co-workers is that the patron is always to be regarded as a guest rather than just a customer.

With this friendly feeling exuded by its employees, the Coppin store has won innumerable new friends. Folks who are reluctant to patronize the large departmental institutions of today need have no hesitancy about trading at Coppin's. One gets the personal attention

Benjamin Thomas Kelly
Burlington, Ky.

Benjamin Thomas Kelly of Burlington is a fruit grower and farmer of wide acquaintance in this section. He was born here March 30, 1861, the son of James P. and Lucinda Craven Kelly. Through his life-long endeavors in his community he has won the friendship of hundreds through his honesty and a sincere desire to cooperate in any movement for the good of Boone County. He was married Oct. 21, 1888, to Ollie Mae Clark. He is the father of four children—Arthur, Frank, Alice and Ora, all of whom are living, except Arthur. Mr. Kelly is one of three surviving heirs of a family of thirteen children, nine boys and four girls. His grandmother, Jesse Kelly, came to Boone County about 1810 and established this family in Kentucky. His wife was Jane Forrer. They also had a family of thirteen children, eight of whom were boys and five girls. All of these children lived to mature age. Each of these eight boys were six feet or more in height. Mr. Kelly is a member of the K. of P., and his hobby is the raising of fruit.

Editor's Note: Mr. Kelly, during the process of the publication of this edition, passed away on July 4th, after an operation for appendicitis.

Here that is lacking in so many of the great machine-like stores in the larger communities and you are hurried in and hastened out.

As a Kentucky institution, the Coppin store is a great home store manned by local people. It helps to maintain schools, public institutions and the general welfare of the state as well as county and city. It promotes employment and livelihood for several hundred persons and its earnings do not go to Wall Street but go right back into the pockets of Kentuckians to be reinvested in their progress.

You may have free parking if they buy or shop at Coppin's. This convenient parking station is located about a half-square from the store. All one need do is drive your car to the parking lot, go to Coppin's, make purchases amounting to a dollar or more and get the sales-check authorized by a store employee. Then when ready to go home or leave the parking station, present the authorized sales-check to the attendant and you get your car without any charge.

These improvements are contemplated at the Coppin store for the near future and it will prove profitable for every reader to visit this interesting store soon if you are not one of those from Boone county and vicinity who make it a regular custom to shop there.

Bluford Watson Adams

Although the subject of this brief biography, Bluford W. Adams, died on February 12, 1912, the memory of his unselfish activities will never be forgotten. He was the first president of the Peoples Deposit Bank at Burlington, was active in its affairs and greatly instrumental in its later successes.

Mr. Adams was a Confederate soldier and served four years under the noted General Morgan. He was honored by his fellow countrymen in many ways and served as circuit clerk for many years. The first ancestor of Mr. Adams that settled in Kentucky was his grandfather, Thomas, who came from Virginia shortly after the Revolutionary War and settled in what is now Grant County. Mr. Adams' father was Presley Park Adams, who was born on October 16, 1810 and who died on January 18, 1872. His mother was Mary Ann (Polley) Stevens born March 4, 1815, the second of ten children of Samuel and Elizabeth Powell Stevens.

Bluford W. Adams' parents were married August 15, 1831 and he was born February 3, 1844, one of eight children of his parents, all of whom are dead with the exception of Mary Ann Adams. On February 9, 1874, Bluford Adams was united in marriage with Ann Bell Allen, born September 20, 1855, the daughter of Benjamin and Isabelle Johnson Allen. The father of Mrs. Adams was a native of Virginia and her mother a native of South Carolina. This couple had but one child, Lizzie Pearl Adams, born Nov. 30, 1874, and died Oct. 27, 1880.

JEROME BRISTOW RESPASS
OWNER HIGHLAND STOCK FARMS

Jerome was about sixteen when his father bought a farm near Florence.

In 1883 Mr. Respass started making fairs showing saddle horses, which naturally and eventually brought him into the owning and raising of thoroughbreds.

In 1898, thirty-two years ago, he started the breeding of these thoroughbred animals that have been synonymous with the great state of Kentucky. The first sixteen years as a breeder were spent at Woodlawn, Ohio, where he raised some of the best horses of that day. All horse fanciers will remember the great "Dick Welles" bred here, up to "Man O' War". He was foaled in 1903 and died in 1923 and is buried along the Dixie Highway.

GRAVE OF "DICK WELLES"

is the owner of a beautiful place of 400 acres near Florence, called the Highland Stock Farm. He has a beautiful home situated on the highest point of his farm overlooking the blue grass pastures, surrounded by wide fences and dotted with scattering colts and yearlings. His herds with an over abundance of high spirits. He has nine horse barns on his place that can stable one hundred forty head each, one in a box stall. At the present time he has forty-four mares, sixteen stallions, seventeen yearlings, twenty-five suckling colts, and twenty-eight yearlings in training. The average number of foals yearly at Mr. Respass' farm totals about twenty-five.

On December 21, 1911 Jerome R. Respass was united in marriage with Rena Becker, a native of Cincinnati. They have one son, Jerome, Jr., who was born on September 21, 1913. He graduated this year from Holmes High School, Covington and will leave in the fall to attend the University of Kentucky.

opposite the home of Mr. Respass. Back in those days purses were smaller and few stake races brought more than $10,000 that today would bring $50,000. In one race "Dick Welles" won $7,200. This was in 1903 when he was started fifteen times and came down in front fourteen times out of the 15 starts. Altogether this horse won $12,000 for his owner. If the purses paid today had been in effect then "Dick Welles" would easily have been the neigns of his owner taking down a quarter of a million dollars in purses and stakes. For instance, a purse valued at $800 today only paid $255 then.

"Witgreen," a son of "Dick Welles" was a Kentucky Derby in 1903 for Mr. Respass and paid him $9,000 for the race. Today that same stake usually pays between $55,000 and $56,000. Mr. Respass bred and raised "Billy Kelly" which he sold as a yearling for $1500. This horse proved to be the best two-year-old of that year, 1917, and was later disposed of for $47,000.

At the present time Mr. Respass

Dr. Lewis C. Hafer
LUDLOW, KY.

There is not a resident of Boone County who can claim descendants of the anti-bellian days of Dr. Lewis C. Hafer, who was born in Boone County and still holds dear the memories of his

Hafer Family History

The Hafer ancestry on both sides can be traced back for many generations. However, the most complete record is found in the ancestors of Lavinia Alice Conner, who is the wife of George Owen Hafer and the mother of Owen Clyde Hafer and Owen Clyde Hafer.

We find that the Hafers came from Germany, the first one in this line being Henry who died in Cincinnati on March 15, 1825. His son, Henry Godfrey Hafer was the father of George Owen Hafer. George Owen Hafer was born on June 18, 1819 and married Lavinia Alice Conner on November 10, 1870. Lavinia Alice Conner Hafer came from most distinguished ancestors, who can be traced back on both sides of the family to late seventeenth century beginnings in America.

There was not enough space here to go in detail about the whole family. Many of the prominent names in the Revolutionary War and the war of 1812. Dr. James Taylor, who was born in Medway, Caroline County, Va., in 1742 and who died in 1814 as numbered in the records of the Kentucky Historical Society and in the family records of the Taylor family association as James Taylor IV because he is the fourth in the name in a direct line in this county. He was the great-great-grandfather of Mr. L. C. Hafer and Owen Clyde Hafer. This Col. James Taylor was prominent in his community, holding office in his county in Virginia during the old French and Indian war, for which he received recognition from the King of England for his services. When the Revolutionary War began Col. Taylor went to his boyhood friend, George Washington and offered his help in the cause of his country. He served as colonel under Washington during the entire period of the Revolution and often by the side of this famous leader. He also helped to fortify the frontier near Staunton, Va. After the close of the war he became active in the affairs of the state of Virginia. In recognition of his services he was given land in Kentucky County on the western waters, and he visited Kentucky at least once but he made his home in Virginia where he died.

Philip Todd Richardson, the great grandfather of these Hafer boys served in the War of 1812 as an ensign in the nineteenth infantry, later being promoted to sergeant. He was killed on September 15, 1814. Six months later he was commissioned a second lieutenant and he was honorably discharged June 15, 1815. Richardson was captured by the Indians and was kept in captivity in Ohio and was more or less sold into the tribe. As the months went on the Indians permitted him at which he remained throughout his life time, with the exception of three years in the government service at the post office in Lexington from 1901 to 1904, and six months in 1914 as postal clerk at St. Petersburg. He completed a short course at the State University, College of Agriculture and interested in and identified with Junior Agriculture Club work in this county.

About 1920 Mr. Hafer purchased the one hundred twenty-five acre farm of his father-in-law, where he now resides. This farm is a beautiful place and Mr. and Mrs. Hafer have made it their home for twenty-five years. He has a large dairy of registered Jersey cattle and has bred and developed some good producers. His son, Robert, who was a member of the Tall Club raised a heifer now making a highest record of any club in the county.

On November 24, 1901 Mr. Hafer was united in marriage with Lela Haysman, daughter of Frank and Sophia Geller Haysman. They have three children, Alice, twenty-four, who is at home; Robert, aged twenty-three, who helps his father on the farm; and Owen, aged twenty-one, who is with the Western Electric Co. of Cincinnati.

W. W. Gaines

J. D. McNeely
GRANT, KY.

William W. Gaines is the son of George W. and Elizabeth Winston Gaines, and was born on his father's farm near Bullittsville, Boone County, on the first day of January, 1867.

Mr. Gaines has been located in Atlanta, Ga., for the past 30 years. He is a lawyer by profession, having his office at 206-7 Atlanta National Bank Building, Atlanta. His first schooling was at the grammar school in Bullittsville. Finishing there he went to Georgetown College, where he graduated in 1887. To complete his education in his chosen profession, he studied law at Washington and Lee University, taking his degree in 1891, going direct to Atlanta to "hang out his shingle." Atlanta at that time was not the big city of the south it is today, and Mr. Gaines has kept pace step by step with the progress of the city.

He was united in marriage with Miss Zula W. Gaines, a popular young lady of Carroll County, December 24, 1896. They have no children. Mr. Gaines is a Mason, Odd Fellows and Red Men. Since here will not permit a complete resume of his many activities but to enumerate a few, he is past Chairman of City Democratic Executive Committee of Atlanta, a frequent contributor to newspapers on religious, educational and political subjects and has lectured many times on religion, education and politics. He has

It is but natural for any young man who starts out with all the advantages, especially wealth and education, to make a success of his life; therefore, a man who starts out with nothing and succeeds in spite of his handicaps is all the more worthy of public tribute, respect and confidence. J. D. McNeely, of Grant, Ky., could be well included in the latter class.

He is a man who has risen high in the business and community life of his section, and has been a continuous effort and a strict adherence to the highest ideals of honesty and integrity of character. For fifteen years he has been a director of the prosperous bank of Hebron, and has done his part in building that institution to its present high state of prosperity.

Mr. McNeely was born at Jackson Landing, Gallatin County on August 3, 1861, the son of G. H. and Mary Agnes Clements McNeely, who resided at Napoleon, Ga. His early life was devoted to farming.

On January 14, 1885 he was united in marriage with Fannie I. Kyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Kyle, a prominent family residing near Beech Grove School House.

Mr. and Mrs. McNeely have four children, all boys, Charles C. E. R. C., Lee R., and J. B.

Mr. McNeely spent his boyhood days in Gallatin county, moving to been, and still is, a member of the Board of Education for ten years and was President of the Board of several terms. He was a member of the Atlanta Farmers' Library for several years and its president. He has been a Moderator of the Atlanta Baptist Association for four terms, and is a former Vice President of the Southern Baptist Convention. Indeed, W. W. Gaines is one of the most widely known citizens of the city and state.

Though being away from the county of his birth for nearly forty years, Mr. Gaines has kept in constant touch with this community, partly through the medium of The Boone County Recorder to which he has been a subscriber all of these years; and before leaving the county was the Bullittsville correspondent for this publication. He still owns his ancestral homestead; and he comes home every year or two.

Boone after his marriage and settled on a farm near Napoleon, Ga. His father, George H. Gaines, owned a large tract of land on Gunpowder Creek giving his wife by her father. During the young years he bought additional land and became prominent in the county as a raiser of live stock and tobacco.

About the time his youngest son was grown Mr. McNeely purchased an eighty acre farm near Waterloo, moving there and where he hopes and expects to spend his remaining days.

Mr. McNeely is treasurer of the Masonic Lodge No. 544 and though he has several hobbies has had little time to indulge in them. He has found time, however, to wield his influence to contribute and cooperate with any forward movement looking toward the betterment of his community and county.

Brother Robert Kirtley served as Kentucky enterprises and society, the family coming here from Virginia shortly after the Revolutionary War. Dr. and Mrs. Hafer have two daughters, Georgia who was born August 11, 1906 and Mary Katherine born the 20th of June 18, 1909. Both girls are graduates of Ludlow High School and Berea College. Charles A. Fowler
BURLINGTON, KY.

Charles A. Fowler was born at Burlington on September 13, 1857, the son of Edward and Susan Scott Fowler whose history will be taken up later on in this article. Charles Fowler, the youngest of eleven children, attended the public schools at Burlington whereupon he learned the painters trade which in those days necessitated a thorough understanding in the mixing of paints. He followed that profession in Burlington until leaving the county during the winter of 1885. At Athens, Ohio, and various other places in that locality, he followed the painters trade during the summer and taught dancing during the winter. He married a girl of that town by the name of Ellen Logan, daughter of J. W. and Mary Woodruff Logan. This event took place on February 16, 1888. Mr. Fowler has two children, Eugenia Scott, born at Burlington March 2, 1901, the wife of C. H. born in Kentucky about 1750. This ancestor was probably the first one of this line to be born in Boone County as Benjamin's father came here from Virginia. Benjamin Fowler was married in 1826 to Ann Scott Brown who was born in 1783 and died in 1861. This was the second marriage for each and both had children by the first marriage. Charlie Fowler's father, Edward Fowler was the eldest son of Benjamin by his first wife and the mother of Charlie Fowler, Susan Scott Brown was the eldest daughter of Ann Scott Brown by her first husband. Though step-brother and sister there was no blood relationship. Edward Fowler was born near Union in 1806 and died in 1884. Susan Scott Brown, his wife, was born in Missouri in 1814 and died in 1888.

Edward Fowler was superintendent and keeper of the poor in Boone County from 1836 to 1839. He was deputy sheriff under W. H. Baker from 1841 to 1865. He was elected assessor in 1864 and served in this office twelve years. His bondsmen for this office were N. E. Hawes, M. Hamilton, and G. W. Weaver. He served one year as constable in 1878. In 1881 he was again elected superintendent of the poor, which office he held until his death.

The grandfather of Charlie Fowler, Benj. Platt Fowler, built the old stone house near Union, now known as Smith House. This house was erected in 1817 of solid limestone with walls twenty inches thick and an endless chain laid in the mortar at each story. Charlie's father and mother were married there in 1830. Benjamin Fowler also built the "old" Boone House and operated a hotel there. This building has since been remodeled and is now the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Benaker.

Besides their two living children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Fowler had one child, Lena Gladys, who was born January 25, 1889 and died

Farmers Bank

The Farmers Bank of Petersburg opened its doors for business on the first day of July, 1903 with every prospect for a brilliant and prosperous future that has been proven by the years of wise and judicious handling of the depositors' money. At the start the bank was capitalized for $15,000, which has since been increased to $25,000, and from the beginning the stockholders have been men of sterling worth and financial strength.

The original stockholders were wise not to spend the greater portion of their first capital by the erection of an elaborate oversize building. However, a banking house was built that answered the purpose in every respect and, best of all, a late improved and burglar proof safe was installed for the safe keeping of the depositors' funds. The bank has been and is still one of the most important cogs in the wheels of commerce turning around the city of Petersburg and the adjacent countryside.

The first president of the institution was Selon Early who at that time, besides being an extensive farmer, was also a magistrate in

The Fiscal Court. The vice president was J. H. Stevens, a well-to-do farmer residing near Petersburg and who now holds the honor and distinction of being President of Boone County. Mr. Stevens, the other officers and directors are as follows: G. H. Grant, Vice President; H. A. Rogers, Cashier and director; H. H. Grant, Jas. E. Gaines, J. W. Grant, Bernard Rogers, Miss Berneice H. Grant, and assistant cashier. No better selection than these could have been made by the stockholders.

These officers and directors have at all times merited the respect and confidence of all with whom they came in contact because the one thought uppermost in their minds was "Service and Accommodation." With such a desire to be of public benefit there is little wonder that the bank has progressed far in the twenty seven years of its existence, with every indication for building still more good will in the years to come. Sometimes a community grows ahead of its bank but in this case it can be said without fear of contradiction that the Farmers Bank of Petersburg has always been a leader in everything for the good of that whole section of the county.

The original family from which Charles W. Riley of Hebron is descended, who of probably Irish extraction, really is of French descent is as much as two brothers of that name settled in "Flanders," France many years prior to our American Revolution. Two of these descendants came over with Lafayette to found the American branch. His mother's family have been Kentuckians since 1792, though going to Louisiana in 1829, the family coming back to Kentucky many years ago. Mr. Riley's great grandfather on his father's side came to Ky. about 1801 from Virginia.

Mr. Riley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Riley who resided a few miles west of Hebron, where the object of this sketch was born on December 15, 1891. Mr. Riley took advantage of the available schooling in his community by attending the common schools and finishing at Covington High School and Transylvania College. His desire for education not being satisfied he is now finishing his second year in law.

In 1910 he was united in marriage with Miss Ona Hankins, one of the most popular young ladies in Boone County, who was married in Boone County and they were blessed with a son, George II, who is now nine years of age.

Until the time that he accepted the position as Cashier of Hebron Deposit Bank in December, 1922, he had been a successful operator on a large farm near Hebron. He entered the Bank to fill the place of his father-in-law who was in ill health and was elected Cashier in his own right during June, 1923. Mr. Riley is a Mason and a past Master of his "log." His greatest hobbies are hunting and fishing which is not surprising considering the pioneer stock from which he came.

Roy L. Clutterbuck
BEVERLY HILLS, CAL.

Though away from Boone County for twenty-three years, Roy L. Clutterbuck still retains many happy memories of the life spent in Boone County and remains greatly interested in the welfare and up-building of his old home county.

In the latter part of the last century he with his brother, H. G. Clutterbuck conducted a general merchandise business in Burlington under the name of Clutterbuck Brothers. Ten years later, about 1907 Roy was compelled to seek a milder climate because of the health of his son, Lawrence, the family moving to California where the boy passed away in Los Angeles in May, 1907. At the present time Mr. Clutterbuck is a salesman for a wholesale grocery house in that city and resides in the well known suburb of Beverly Hills at 232 South Sawdust Drive.

Mr. Clutterbuck was born at Filmore, Ky. the 12th of September 1881 the son of James R. and Belle Senger Clutterbuck. The father of Roy will be well remembered by the older generation as one of the best sheriffs Boone County had during those years. In October 26, 1899 Mr. Clutterbuck was married to Anna Luss Garrison, also of Boone County. They have two children, Roy William age 22 and Homer Warren age 24.

being the same date as George Washington's, however, the subject of this short biography first saw the light of day many years later, to be exact, February 22, 1869. His parents were John and Nancy Sandford, respected and honored citizens of the Burlington community.

The majority of his boyhood days were spent in and around Burlington, the memory of those happy days still linger, and he received his education at the old Morgan Academy in that town. His mother passed away when he was but two years of age and three years later he went with his father to Nebraska where they remained

Prior to this time after his mother's death he lived with his grandmother Sandford, who operated the hotel of that name in Burlington. In June of 1906 he was united in marriage with Miss Mary Cason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cason, whose family history goes back to the beginning of Kentucky as a state. They have no children.

Mr. Sandford is a member of the Knights of Pythias and for amusement likes nothing better than horse racing. We know his many friends in Boone county wish for both him and his wife a long and prosperous life in their adopted home.

and have one child, Mary Margaret. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fowler returned to Boone County in 1916 where they now live. However, prior to this time they spent two years in Burlington as propagandists and operators of the old Boone Hotel.

In 1917 Mr. Fowler was appointed jailer, later being elected to the office which he held for twelve years. He refused to make the race for this office in 1929, not feeling equal to the occasion. He said a job worth doing at all is worth doing well, and he was afraid his ill health would not permit him to do justice to the position. During his term of office he had three hundred fifty-six prisoners under his charge, all of whom caused him very little trouble with the exception of one Ben Sweeney, who through trickery and taking advantage of Mr. Fowler's goodness struck him over the head with an iron bar.

which nearly caused his death. This prisoner and two others left the jailer for dead and made their escape. This occurred the night of Nov. 19, 1926. The other two have been captured, but Sweeney never was heard from. There is little question in the minds of the Boone County people that Mr. Fowler made one of the most capable jailers ever elected to that office.

Her husband was a prominent jeweler in that town for many years, the store being operated at present by Reed Riley, his nephew who took over the business upon the death of Mr. Riley.

Martha Frances Fowler, the sister of Charlie Fowler, was born in Boone County November 19, 1836 and died September 9, 1925. She was united in marriage with J. B. Hawes in February, 1865. They had three children. Mary Hawes is now the operator at the local telephone exchange. Joseph Edward Hawes is married and has two children. The third child of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hawes was Alpha, who died April 11, 1888 at the age of eighteen.

Charles Fowler's father and mother were members of the Burlington Presbyterian church for fifty years.

In 1917 Mr. and Mrs. George W. Sandford left Boone County in search of a warmer climate where they found at Glendale, Arizona, where they have a most pleasant home at 18 Central Ave. Mr. Sandford is an extensive grower of citrus fruits and raises pure blood poultry. His splendid character quickly endeared him to the residents of his new home where he has taken his rightful place as a leader in his community.

Mr. Sandford is a native of Boone County, having been born just one mile west of Burlington in what was known as the Chadley Birkle place. His birthday is celebrated all over the United States,

Robert Ewing Berkshire

(By W. D. Atwood)

As publisher of a local newspaper, Circuit Clerk and Master Commissioner of Boone County, there can be little doubt that Robert E. Berkshire is known to every man, woman and child in this section and his friendly disposition, with a high degree of selflessness, has made him hundreds of loyal friends.

When Mr. Berkshire purchased a half interest in the Recorder from Judge Riddell in 1924 he had little or no knowledge of the "fourth estate" except a natural talent that was soon brought to light by steady improvements in this county seat journal. Not quite one year later he became sole owner and since that time has used the prestige of his columns toward what he earnestly believed to be for the best of the community. His paper has never been subsidized by local or foreign influences; however, when it has become necessary to take a foreign stand on questions of moment he has been unwavering in abiding by his own convictions only after careful and judicious thought. Today he is looked upon by "brother editors," in his own and adjoining states, as a leader in his field, whose advice and counsel is sought upon many occasions in all branches of the newspaper business.

In the year of 1921 he received the nomination for Circuit Clerk of Boone County without opposition and was elected that fall, taking his office in January of 1922. He is also Master Commissioner and Trustee of the Jury Fund. These offices of public trust he has faithfully fulfilled with satisfaction to all concerned and in 1927 was again given these same positions by the voters of this county. Until the spring of 1928 he accomplished the almost impossible task of running his newspaper and taking care of his clerical duties without aid, other than the mechanical help at the printing plant.

Robert Ewing Berkshire was born near Petersburg on September 25, 1893, the son of Benjamin and Ebel Norris Berkshire whose family ancestry appears elsewhere in this history. His elementary education was received in the same old country schools attended by his father and at the age of ten he entered the Petersburg public schools when his parents moved to that place. He graduated from the High School there in 1910 and from the Aurora High School in 1912, where, beside his studies, he found

PEOPLES DEPOSIT BANK

Peoples Deposit Bank

In 1904 a number of influential men of Boone County made the decision to formulate plans for a new banking institution at Burlington. Naturally, the first procedure was to sell the capital stock and Owens Watts was delegated the authority to make this attempt. His success was not immediate, and so not to delay longer W. P. Beemon was asked to see a number of his friends and acquaintances on this proposition. The final results of Mr. Beemon's endeavor proved conclusively no better man could have been chosen to dispose of this stock, for in mighty short order the original capital of $20,000 was oversubscribed.

After the pledging of this $20,000 in capital stock a meeting of the stock holders was held in May 1905 with Owen Watts appointed chairman and D. E. Castleman secretary of the meeting. At this time the following directors were elected: O. P. Conner, W. Adams, F. J. Walton, W. L. B. Rouse, A. W. Corn, W. P. Beemon, C. W. Riley, Henry Clore and H. C. Duncan. These officers and directors adopted a resolution that a cashier be obtained at a salary of $600 per year, if a competent man could be obtained for that figure. That same day the directors met and elected H. W. Adams as vice-president, and a committee of O. P. Conner, W. L. B. Rouse, W. P. Beemon and H. W. Adams were appointed to locate the site. On June 10th these men reported that they had purchased the land where now stands the old bank building. Because of the fact that no cashier had been appointed temporary treasurer, a call for 10% of the stock was ordered payable to him at once to start the erection of a bank building and to pay for the lot.

At a meeting of the directors on August 11, 1905, Mr. A. B. Renaker was elected cashier of the bank by unanimous vote. At this time a call for 40% additional of the capital stock was made. Though greatly instrumental in the formation of the Peoples Deposit Bank O. P. Conner, the vice president, died before the bank was opened, and H. H. Henshew was elected as a member of the board and W. L. B. Rouse named vice president.

From the very start, the bank made success and started paying dividends at the end of the first year of 4% semi-annually. This increased gradually to 4 1/2% and in 1920 a 10% semi-annual dividend was paid. Business increased materially as the years went along and in 1925 a 12% semi-annual dividend was played, which has been maintained since that time. In August 19, the capital stock was increased from $20,000 to $40,000, giving the bank a wider latitude in business affairs and increased materially the opportunity for benefitting the depositors. Some of this additional stock was scattered among the old stock holders, but most of it was disposed of to other residents of the county. The first President, H. W. Adams, served from the beginning of the Bank until his death in 1912 at which time W. L. B. Rouse was elected to the Presidency and served until his death on March 10, 1923. At this time H. H. Young was elected President and served until his death May 26, 1930 and on June 2, 1930 Judge E. B. Riddell was unanimously elected as President and is now acting in that capacity with this institution. Since the start of the bank the phenomenal large sum, considering the size of the county, of $130,000 has been paid to the stock holders of this bank in dividends.

The day the Peoples Deposit Bank opened for business the records show a deposit of $10,297.38. This was on November 6, 1905. Five years later the deposits had increased to $138,037.85. On Nov. 19, 1915 the deposits had surpassed the one quarter of a million mark and totaled $361,198.17. On June 30, 1925 they had nearly doubled this figure with the total of $616, $80.95, and on June 30, 1927 they totaled nearly $1,000,000, to be exact $2,543,072.58 and the deposits of June 30, 1930 total $1,043,226.81.

Today the Peoples Deposit Bank of Burlington is the largest in the county and here are none stronger in proportion to size than this bank. It has a capital stock of $50,000, a surplus of $100,000 and undivided profit of $55,000. The directors of the bank at the present time are all influential and prominent men of the community, each of whom have been most successful in their businesses and private enterprises. A. W. Corn, Henry Clore and W. P. Beemon were directors at the start of the bank and are now honored and valuable members of the board. Other directors of this bank include R. S. Cawen, A. B. Rogers, N. E. Riddell, C. F. Blankenship, F. L. Mettleson and Dr. S. B. Nunnemeyer. The bank has a new president in the person of N. E. Riddell, who was elected to fill the vacancy of H. H. Young when he died suddenly May 26, of this year.

Judge Riddell, while a new president of the Peoples Deposit Bank, is not new to the banking business as he was at the head of the old Boone County Deposit Bank before it was merged with the Peoples Deposit Bank. A. W. Corn is vice president and has held this position for seven years. H. W. Renaker is cashier, which position he has faithfully held since the start of this financial institution. Miss Nell H. Martin is assistant cashier, having been with the Peoples Deposit Bank over a period of twenty years. The other assistant cashier are L. C. Beemon, who has held this position with the Peoples Bank for ten years, G. S. Kelly also has 13 years banking experience with the exception of eight months spent in the war, 10 of those years he was with the Boone County Bank and, since the merger, with the Peoples Bank. L. C. Copper, the junior assistant cashier, has been in the banking business five years, two of which were with the old Boone County Bank and the last three with the Peoples. This personal charge of the daily business of the Peoples Deposit Bank is most efficient, and ready and willing at all times to render the ultimate in service, to the bank's customers.

As was stated before, the Peoples Deposit Bank purchased the assets of the Boone County Deposit Bank, this event taking place in February, 1927. The Boone County Deposit Bank was the older of the two, having been founded in August, 1855 with Fountain Riddell as president of the institution. Two years prior to the merger the old Boone County Deposit Bank built a beautiful new building across from the court house, moved into its new home on October 22, 1925, and of course since the merger this new building has housed the Peoples Deposit Bank.

The building is a two story structure of wire cut brick and stone trimmings. The building faces the north and one enters two large French doors into a lobby 14 feet long. At one end of the lobby is a ladies' restroom with beautiful wicker furnishings, for the benefit of the public, where one can meet friends and business associates. The counters are of mahogany with plates glass and marble forty inches high. The vault used for the storing of the bank's money, books and valuable papers is constructed of solid concrete two and one-half feet thick, heavily reinforced with steel. The door is of docked ten inches thick of the latest type, and weighs more than 20,000 lbs., making an absolute burglar proof vault. The second floor of the building is utilized as a lodge room by a number of different organizations.

At the time the Peoples Bank took over the new building after the merger the bank held open time to make the track team, winning several medals for ability in those events.

At this time Bob, as his friends call him, was determined to study law, therefore the father that year found him enrolled at the University of Kentucky where he spent two years preparing himself for that position. In July 1916, when home on vacation, he was severely injured by the kick of a mule while working on the farm and for a time his life was despaired of by the attending doctors and specialists. This hurt was undoubtedly a turning point in his life for, though he started in with his university work that fall, he was unable to continue through the spring and was brought home by a serious operation, with his illness that summer making study impossible. While at Lexington he was a letter on the track team when he did the hundred yard dash in ten and one-fifth seconds against the sprinters at the University of Cincinnati. Among these was Dr.

Victor Fishback, now a prominent specialist, and well known to Boone County people.

On January 12, 1916, Mr. Berkshire was united in marriage with Lella Thompson of Petersburg, daughter of James M. and Ida Allen Thompson. They have three lovely children, all girls, Melicent Ann, age 15; Helen, 11, and Roberta, age 9, all of whom attended the schools at Burlington.

For two years after his marriage Mr. Berkshire carried on farming operations near Petersburg before accepting a position as a clerk in the store of the Berkshire Company of that place. He had a varied career that included many activities which were to prove most valuable, especially in newspaper work, where such information is really essential. In the fall of 1916 he accepted a position as a marker in the Aurora Leaf Tobacco market and the next spring, as a partner with Edgar C. Riley, purchased the two stories of White Bros. and Berkshire Company combining them into one business which they operated for several months before reselling to the White Brothers. At this time Mr. Berkshire opened up a truck freight line from Petersburg to Cincinnati that he was carrying on at the time of his election to public office and in April of 1922 he moved his family to Burlington where they have since resided.

Mr. Berkshire has been a member of the Petersburg Christian Church since the age of twelve years and is a member of the Knights of Pythias of that town. He has a membership in the Masonic lodge at Burlington and of the Scottish Rite at Covington. He is also affiliated with the Burlington Lodge, Modern Woodmen. He is interested in all forms of sports, with a preference for baseball, and is a leader of the national pastime in this section. Besides his other activities Mr. Berkshire is Chairman of the Democratic County convention and vitally interested in the growth of Boone County.

house to celebrate this opening on Monday, February 11, 1927. There were gifts for the ladies and cigars and cigarettes in abundance for the men. The lobby was banked with floral pieces as gifts from friends and banking friends. Representatives were here from New York, Cincinnati and Louisville. Estimated attendance that day was conservatively placed at 500, which was a pleasant surprise to officials of the bank as it served as conclusive proof of the popularity of the merger. The man who made the first deposit of this bank in his new home was J. M. Barlow (Uncle Jimmie), who had long been a friend to this institution.

Walton Equitable Bank

The Walton Equitable Bank at Walton, Ky., is the result of the merger of two other banks in that town, namely The Equitable Bank and Trust Company and The Walton Bank and Trust Company. This event having taken place in February 1927. The capital stock totaled $50,000 and they had a $50,000 surplus with $50,000 in undivided profits and combined reserves of $760,000.00.

At the time of the merger the following respected and representative men were chosen as directors: R. C. Greene, President; D. B. Mayhugh, Vice President; J. D. Wallace, E. K. Stevens, Oliver Brown, G. N. Powers, A. M. Edwards, D. E. Dudley, J. C. Bedinger and R. E. Kyle. R. B. Brown and Chas. W. Ransler were also vice presidents with Alan H. Gaines secretary and F. Sleet West, cashier. J. B. Doan and E. C. Bedinger, assistant cashiers. J. D. Mayhugh was later elected president and upon his death in March, 1928, J. D. Rice was selected to fill that high place making him the youngest bank president in the state.

After the merger had been effected a beautiful new home for the bank was erected at a cost of $52,000.00. It is a two-story limestone building with one hundred foot frontage on the main street of Walton. The exterior is decorated with marble and in natural quarried oak finish. A ten-inch vault door guards the public's money further protected by a safe. The building is a fireproof deposit boxes are available to all who need the use of such a depository. It is in the hands of the trust powers and a member of the Kentucky State Bankers Association.

The present directors represent the leaders of their community. They are, Wilford M. Rice, President; R. B. Brown, an attorney; Chas. W. Ransler, real estate; Geo. C. Kolb, president of Washington Bank, Cincinnati; A. B. Gaines, president of the Walton Lumber Company; J. C. Bedinger, farmer; Wm. Brittenheim, capitalist; D. E. Dudley, retired; A. M. Edwards, President Walton Lumber Company; G. B. Powers, real estate; R. E. Kyle, physician and D. B. Wallace, retired bank and capitalist. The officers are: Geo. C. Kolb, Chairman of the Board; Wilford M. Rice, President; R. B. Brown, Vice President; Chas. W. Ransler, President; R. E. Kyle, Vice President; Alan H. Gaines, Secretary; F. Sleet West, Cashier; J. B. Doan and H. E. Metcalf, assistant cashiers.

The Equitable Bank and Trust Company was organized September 7, 1907 by J. G. Tomlin, A. B. Tompkins, D. B. Wallace, J. L. West and R. M. Byland who made up a capital stock of $50,000.00. At the first meeting of the stockholders the following men were elected as directors: C. L. Griffith, Pres.; J. L. Vest, Vice Pres.; J. B. Donaldson, R. B. Alphin, A. B. Thompson, R. E. Brown, T. H. McClell, J. C. Miller, O. S. Watts, W. M. Hinson and H. A. Perkins. D. B. Wallace was the first cashier and served as such until elected president about 1916, serving in the latter capacity until 1925 when he retired and J. C. Miller became president. The bank was successful from the start and paid a six percent dividend to the stockholders in 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919, 1920, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1930, 1931, 1932, Judge John M. Lassing

John Maurice Lassing, eldest son of Dr. H. C. and Anna E. Lassing, was born at Elm Tree near Union, Boone County, Mo., in 1864. He received his elementary education in the common schools of Boone County and his collegiate course at Central University, Richmond, Kentucky, from which he graduated in 1886. For the next two years he taught school and studied law in his spare time under Fountain Riddell, an eminent lawyer practicing at Bur-

Gaines Family

From early historical Virginia ancestry, in the latter part of the seventeenth century, came our Boone County Gaines. The first, Sir George (followed later by two brothers—Capt. William M. and (church) to Burlington; and a first cousin, Abner, to Walton, which place was named by him for a faithful carpenter, Walton, who built his first log dwelling.

We can imagine for these and other early settlers their laborious yet thrilling trip in covered wagons across the rough, unsettled country, braving the Indians and many dangers, to pave the way for civilization to follow; focussing, at last, the "Old Kentucky Home," where queens and real housewives, our mothers, reigned supreme and were the link-chain "powers behind the throne."

Our mothers should occupy next to our Lord,
—A throne, perhaps at his feet,
And we, thoughtless children, by act and by word
Should reverse and press toward that Seat.

Abner (Gaines) and Elizabeth Mathews (Gaines) were the parents of eight children: Mrs. Elizabeth Hubbell; Arch and James M. of Walton, Richmond and Covington; senator John P. of United States; a veteran and prisoner in the war with Mexico, elected to Congress in 1849 from Boone County, and governor of Oregon; Major A. W. Gaines of Arkansas and New Orleans, husband of Nancy Ann Daniel of Danville, Kentucky, with five in the United States war with Mexico, father of Mrs. Sue Burke. Who in 1881 was the founder of the New Orleans Times Democrat and the inspirer of some of its best deeds. She was also the mother of Lindsay Burke, the young man, who, with three other Americans, so heroically stood at his post in the service of Belgium, in the Congo Free State and was killed; Mrs. Mildred Davis and Benjamin P. Gaines of Chicago County, Arkansas; and Mr. William Gaines of Hot Springs, Arkansas, who died at ninety-seven years of age, an active business man most of life and known in his old age for his extreme gentleness and kindness.

The son, James M., was the father of George T. Gaines, a farmer and stock-raiser of Boone County, who married Susan Randolph Harrison, daughter of Rev. J. C. Harrison. To them were given William T., Joseph C., Chas. L., George T., of Arizona, James M. of Jacksonville, Florida; Mrs. E. F. Bedinger, Mrs. Maud G. Bedinger and Mrs. Geston Gardner of Rome, Georgia.

Walton Baptist Church

WALTON BAPTIST CHURCH

The First Baptist Church at Walton was organized about 1836 in a school house on the Beaver Creek road at the fork under Rev. Germin as pastor. The site of the old church was where the cemetery now stands on Church street. In 1912 the property for the new church was purchased and one year later the work began on the structure, totaling a cost of $1800 when it was completed. The Walton Lodge of Masons laid the cornerstone which is dated 1913 and in which was placed a list of the church membership, coins, a Boone County Recorder, a Cincinnati Times Star, a Baptist Western Recorder and a brief history of the church and a silver masonic square. Rev. W. H. McMillan was pastor of the church at that time. The church was dedicated November 1, 1914 and more than enough money was subscribed that day to carry the debt.

The present pastor of the church is C. E. Brown, who was called in April 1928 from Falmouth. The present board of deacons are: E. L. Aylott, D. K. Johnson, George W. Sleat, J. B. O'Neal, Ed. Hankinson, L. P. Chapman, J. R. Fearon, R. K. Kyle, T. W. Jones, John Myers, S. H. McClard and W. H. Hobbes. The pastors who served the church: Rev. L. Johnson gave service free for the first five years before the church was built; Rev. Germin, L. Johnson, Riley, Fisher, T. C. Eaton, George Hill, Andrews, Stewart, H. C. Wayman McMillan and Rev. C. E. Brown.

Wm. Marshall Whitson
VERONA, KY.

Though modest and unassuming in the contact with friends and neighbors, William M. Whitson is one of the most prominent men in Boone County and a leader in social, civic and business enterprises at Verona.

Mr. Whitson was born October 26, 1863 in the Verona precinct, the son of J. T. and Sophia Dugden Whitson. At the age of three his parents moved to Gallatin Co., where he remained until reaching the age of eighteen on the same farm where his great grandfather set-

One year after leaving school he was united in marriage with Mattie H. Hudson, on November 2, 1886. She is the daughter of N. G. and Ellen Hope Gass Hudson long time residents of Boone County. After their marriage this couple lived three years in Gallatin County, then moving to their present farm of two hundred twenty-four acres in 1890. This farm was the ancestral home and birthplace of Mrs. Whitson. Extensive general farming operations are carried on here by Mr. Whitson, whose up-to-date methods have made him most successful.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitson have five children: Ellen Howe, who married H. Bess Vest, they have one child Helen Dudley, aged thirteen; Mary Rose, the wife of J. L. Hamilton, who have two children, Fred and Robert, aged thirteen and eleven respectively; James Harvey, plant manager of the Murray Boly Co., married Frances Danzig of Detroit where they now reside and have two children, Constance and Edith, three months; Alice E., married Harry Chapman and they have two children, James and Rose, aged ten and nine; and Rose Ellen, seven; William, Jr., married Nona Eskridge, a former Boone County girl, who now resides at Detroit also, and is a salesman for Delta Battery Co.

For thirty years Mr. Whitson has been clerk of the local Bethel Baptist Church and is an active and zealous worker in behalf of that congregation. He has been a deacon of that church for 20 years. He has been president of the Verona Bank since its inception and has been mainly responsible for its many successful and prosperous years. He was secretary of the local school board for sixteen years, declining the position in 1910. He has never sought elective political office.

It is typical of the whole Whitson family to be honest and

Martin Perry Barlow

The subject of this sketch, Martin Perry Barlow, is one of the best loved and most looked-up-to members of this community. Always ready to aid in any way for any worthy cause and a firm believer in right living. He is the son of William Henry and Susan Tanager Barlow and was born in Boone County, near Florence, Ky., on the 31st day of January, 1869. He is a most successful farmer and is now living on the same farm where his great grandfather settled on Gunpowder Creek when they came here from Virginia about 1806. His great grandparents on his mother's side came to this state from Pennsylvania.

If being a native of any state necessitates long residence for a family, Mr. Barlow could surely be called one of Kentucky's native sons. He was married on the 30th day of August 1893 to Rosa Ella Snyder, also a native of Boone County and descended from an old family. They have two children;

one boy and one girl, Harry Mark and Rosa Mae both of whom are married; the daughter now being Mrs. A. J. Renaker who resides at Florence, Ky. The son is following his father's footsteps by operating a farm near Waterloo, Mr. Barlow is a prominent and active member of the Hopeful Lutheran Church and is most interested in all civic affairs pertaining to the good of the County.

William B. Rogers
GRANT, KY.

In his connection as president of the Citizens Deposit Bank at Grant, as a deacon in the Bellevue Baptist Church and as one of the progressive farmers in Boone County William Barnett Rogers is looked upon by all who know him as a man of sterling worth and upright character. He was born July 19, 1878 near Bellevue the son of James and Laura Rogers, natives of this section and descendants of old pioneer stock. He is married to Isella Garrett Scott and they have three children, Laura (Mrs. John Clore), Marian and W. B. Rogers Jr.

dealing always assured, Mr. Whitson is frequently called upon for contributions for many causes, and he never refuses if the trust is worthy and the upbuilding of his community or county the object.

JUDGE JOHN M. LASSING

linton. To complete this study he entered the Cincinnati Law School in 1880 finishing the regular two year course in one year graduating with the class of 1890 ranking seventh among a total of ninety students. He, at once entered the practice of law at Burlington and became actively identified with Democratic politics in Boone County and the Sixth Congressional District.

In 1891 he was elected to the office of County Attorney which position he held for the three-year term fixed under the new constitution. At the expiration of this term he was re-elected in '94 and held this office until the death of John W. Green, Circuit Judge in this District when Mr. Lassing was appointed Circuit Judge resigning the office of County Attorney. He was elected to this office by the people at the November election following his appointment and at the expiration of this term was on the Appellate Court Bench, was elected to the United States Senate creating a vacancy on the Appellate Court from this District. Judge Lassing was appointed to fill that vacancy and held under regular election until the next regular election when he was nominated by the Democratic party and elected for the remainder of that term when he was again nominated and elected for a full term. He held this office until impaired health compelled him to resign.

He held each of the above mentioned offices approximately seven years, thus giving him twenty-one years of public service along the lines of his chosen profession. His political record is unique and perhaps without parallel having been twice elected to each of three offices and having voluntarily resigned each.

Shortly after leaving in Burlington Judge Lassing married Miss Lillard Brady, youngest daughter of Robert A. and Susan Brady. They have three sons, Warren and Robert who are located in Florida and John Jr. who resides in Burlington. All three of the sons are married. The Judge has two grandchildren—June, daughter of Robert and Jennie May, and Mary Lina, daughter of John Jr. and Ruth.

Judge Lassing was, for many years, quite active in state politics, having charge of Democratic Headquarters with Gov. McCreary in the management of the Beckman-Yerkes campaign which was perhaps the most hotly contested of all Kentucky gubernatorial campaigns. He likewise managed the successful campaign of Gov. McCreary in his race for the United States Senate and later the campaign of Judge Paynter for that same office. It has been said of Judge Lassing that he never lost a fight where he was given exclusive control of its management.

Since his retirement from the bench he has spent his winters in Florida and has ceased his political activities. He has devoted much of his time to improvement of the roads in Boone County and the network of federal and state highways being laid out in this county stand as a testimonial to his ability along those lines.

straight-forward in every respect. Probably the most of them who have descended from the grandfather, A. D. Whitson, who was born about 1812 and died in 1875. A. D. was a farmer and a dealer in tobacco and live stock. He reared his own tobacco, packing it in hogsheads when it was shipped to Cincinnati and sold over the "brakes." The stock that he purchased must necessarily have been driven on foot to Cincinnati because of the lack of shipping facilities. The son of A. D. Whitson was the father of both D. K. and William M. Whitson, and after the death in 1875 of A. D. his son took the business and both of these men had the name of "square dealing" which has been handed down to the present generation.

As near as can be found out from the records, the Whitson family in Boone County came from Boone County from Harrison County and the Revolutionary War.

The greatest pleasure in the life of Mr. Whitson is in looking over the fertile and rolling fields and pastures being laid out in this county stand as a testimonial to his ability along those lines.

Miss Lillian Bristow UNION, KY.

Anyone who ever has visited the Union Deposit Bank never will forget the wholesomeness and pleasing personality of its assistant cashier, Miss Lillian Bristow, who has endeared herself to the hearts of all who know her. Miss Bristow was born near Union July 31, 1894, the daughter of Napoleon and Annie Anderson Bristow. Her father died in 1926 and her mother makes her home at Union. Miss Lillian has two sisters, Mrs. Louise Adams of Lexington and Sue, Kathryn Bristow and one brother, Sanford, both of the latter residing at home.

Lillian Bristow was a member of the first graduating class of Union High School in 1914. Four years later she entered upon her duties at the above named bank where, as we said before, she holds the position of assistant cashier. She is an active member of the Baptist church and belongs to the Bristow Chapter O. E. S. at Erlanger. This chapter was named after one of her relatives. Lillian Bristow's paternal great grandfather, Gen. Leonard Stephens came to this section from Virginia. He was a big land owner and was commissioned a general fighting with Washington during the Revolutionary War.

Not long after the birth of independence in this country, the French firm, Lafayette, came a visit to the Middle West and by his choosing was entertained at the home of Gen. Stephens at Lone Grove, stopping there on his travels from Lexington to Cincinnati. Lillian's grandfather, Rulon Bristow, married Siatta Stephens, a daughter of this above mentioned personage. Lillian's father came to Boone County after his marriage where he operated a farm now owned by his heirs. Lillian's maternal grandfather, Ben Anderson, married Mary Huay, who came here from Missouri prior to the Civil War. Ben Anderson enlisted in the Confederate Army as a trooper under Gen. Morgan, Co. 1, 2nd Kentucky Cavalry, and became his favorite soldier. Lillian's mother was born near Union on October 22, 1867.

Florence Baptist Church

The Florence Baptist Church was organized some time before 1856. The old building was erected in 1855. From the organization of the church to 1900 there have been no records preserved. In January, 1900, Rev. S. M. Adams and Dr. B. F. Swindler held a revival meeting. Several additions by letter and one by baptism were the visible results.

In 1908 Rev. Vickers, assisted by Rev. G. W. Aragabrite, held a two week's meeting. At the close of this meeting, February, 1908, the church was reorganized with thirteen members.

The church being pastorless, in May, 1928, the District Board (by the request of the church) sent W. A. M. Wood, Field Worker, as "Missionary" Pastor, to labor with them and assist in erecting the present building which was dedicated to the glory of our Lord, the fourth day of May, 1930.

Jesse L. Hamilton

Under the name of N. B. Hamilton and Son, Jesse L. Hamilton operates a general store at Verona, one of the oldest businesses in Boone County. He is in the undertaking business for himself at that place with a splendid equipment containing all the necessary devices to carry on such an establishment. He is a graduate of Cincinnati College of Embalming and has a Kentucky license as both embalmer and undertaker. His father purchased the building in which the store is located in 1875, but he operated a store there prior to that time. The old store building was used for a number of years as a school conducted by the much loved Nannie E. Hamilton.

Jesse L. Hamilton was born in Verona on March 31, 1893, the son of N. B. and Elizabeth Hudson Hamilton. His father was born on January 14, 1860 and died December 15, 1927. The Petersburg Baptist Church

Welcome is the inscription that meets the eye when entering by this little church on the corner of one of our main streets.

This church was organized in 1914 with only eleven members. In 1916 these few decided to build a house for the worship of God, so very man and women went to work. Today they have 193 members, preaching every Lord's Day, with a large Sunday School and plenty of mid-week services for the young and old.

Rev. R. C. McNeely, a Boone County boy, was the first pastor, with Mr. C. S. Lucas, another fine young man now doing the work. Such men as Dr. Herget, Hanson Ellis and Sleet have held meetings with great results.

This writer is sure that there is no man in this section of Kentucky who had a wider acquaintance with the leading characters of his day than Jacob Showers, who has been a respected home owner in Verona for nearly sixty years and a permanent resident of that town since 1910 when he retired from active duty with the largest hotel corporation in Cincinnati.

Jacob Showers was born in Louisville on April 8, 1848 where he was reared, and where he attended the local schools of that day. At the age of twelve he entered the hotel business, which was to become his life-long occupation. His first position was with the old Galt House in Louisville where he stayed from 1860 to 1865.

He saw many stirring things around famous old hotels during the days of the Civil War, and the one standing out most prominently in his mind was that of the burning of the old Galt House in 1862. When Gen. Sunday Nelson was killed by Gen. Jeff C. Davis. Both of these officers were members of the Federal Army and while it was never known for sure just what caused the trouble, it was rumored that he, and a lie was passed about some previous engagement participated in by both of these officers.

On leaving the Galt House Mr. Showers accepted a position with the Burnet House in Cincinnati, O., as Clerk where he stayed until the death of Lincoln of course the old Galt House had burned down and a new one rebuilt and he was offered a position with this hotel and he accepted it. Mr. Showers has photographs of the most famous actors and the most prominent people of that day and has menus of the old Burnet House in Cincinnati dated 1865, one for Thanksgiving and the other for Christmas. In connection with this, the writer brings to mind something perhaps few people know or remember. After the death of Lincoln of course the presidency was taken over by Vice President Johnston. For some unknown reason, Mr. Johnston neglected to designate a day for Thanksgiving until it was too late to announce the special day at the customary time.

That day that was officially set for December 7th, and as we stated before, Mr. Showers has a menu reflecting that event at the old Burnet House in Cincinnati.

Jacob Showers VERONA, KY.

This writer is sure that there is no man in this section of Kentucky who had a wider acquaintance with the leading characters of his day than Jacob Showers, who has been a respected home owner in Verona for nearly sixty years and a permanent resident of that town since 1910 when he retired from active duty with the largest hotel corporation in Cincinnati.

Jacob Showers was born in Louisville on April 8, 1848 where he was reared, and where he attended the local schools of that day. At the age of twelve he entered the hotel business, which was to become his life-long occupation. His first position was with the old Galt House in Louisville where he stayed from 1860 to 1865.

He saw many stirring things around famous old hotels during the days of the Civil War, and the one standing out most prominently in his mind was that of the burning of the old Galt House in 1862. When Gen. Sunday Nelson was killed by Gen. Jeff C. Davis. Both of these officers were members of the Federal Army and while it was never known for sure just what caused the trouble, it was rumored that he, and a lie was passed about some previous engagement participated in by both of these officers.

On leaving the Galt House Mr. Showers accepted a position with the Burnet House in Cincinnati, O., as Clerk where he stayed until the death of Lincoln of course the old Galt House had burned down and a new one rebuilt and he was offered a position with this hotel and he accepted it. Mr. Showers has photographs of the most famous actors and the most prominent people of that day and has menus of the old Burnet House in Cincinnati dated 1865, one for Thanksgiving and the other for Christmas. In connection with this, the writer brings to mind something perhaps few people know or remember. After the death of Lincoln of course the presidency was taken over by Vice President Johnston. For some unknown reason, Mr. Johnston neglected to designate a day for Thanksgiving until it was too late to announce the special day at the customary time.

That day that was officially set for December 7th, and as we stated before, Mr. Showers has a menu reflecting that event at the old Burnet House in Cincinnati.

Holly Rufus Forkner

Holly Rufus Forkner is and has been the county agricultural agent for Boone County during the past several years.
